CITY WORKING HARD IN SCRAP RUBBER DRIVE

Entire Families Busy Hunting Up Odds and Ends To Help Nation Fight War.

GAS STATIONS RUSHED

Reports Show Collections Vary From 150 to 800 Pounds at Collection Points.

A little girl who gave up her doll because it is made of rubber, which the little girl knows that her country needs, is the clearest example of how Mansfield is responding to the scrap rubber collection now in progress.

Entire families are bringing in collections of scrap rubber articles. Fathers are bringing in the heavy items, like worn out tires and tubes. Boys are bringing in pieces of garden hose, bicycle tires no longer useful. Women and girls are bringing in items that have outworn their usefulness around the home, like stair treads, and overshoes, and bathing caps.

There is no accurate estimate available on the amount of scrap rubber realized in the first day of the two-week collection in Mansfield. But filling station operators and attendants are keeping busy.

One company reported that approximately 18,000 pounds had been turned in at its six stations. Another company estimated that total collection at its four stations was approximately 8,000 pounds.

Meanwhile, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, revealing that the army has already been forced to cut its rubber consumption by 25 per cent, said today at Washington that success of the national scrap rubber col-

Legislators Talk $50,000 Ceiling On Family Income

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The house ways and means committee today renewed consideration of President Roosevelt's proposal to limit individual income to $25,000 a year after taxes, now modified to make the family income ceiling $50,000.

The modification was presented to the committee in a detailed treasury recommendation for a war "supertax" which would confiscate all of a single person's net income in excess of $25,000 and all net family income after $50,000.

In addition to the $25,000 and $50,000 personal supertax exemptions, the treasury proposal would allow these deductions from the income ceiling:

1. Charitable contributions in the amount of 15 per cent of income remaining after federal and state taxes are paid.

2. Debt liquidation of 15 per cent of this net income.

3. The taxes now being paid on 1941 income.

Meantime, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., by implication withdrew from his campaign to push the new tax bill up to the administration's figure of $8,700,000,000 without adoption of a sales tax.

The treasury is still opposed to a sales tax, he told a press conference, but was not "sweating" because the committee's bill is still $2,000,000,000 short of the administration goal.

PEOPLE IN TOWN LOOKING FOR WORK—

—From the farm, from colleges, and from other cities, people are coming home to Mansfield to look for the work. Before going out of town to seek jobs most of these newcomers will read the Help Wanted ads in THE NEWS-JOURNAL.

Unless your ad appears in THE NEWS-JOURNAL you will have passed up an opportunity to hire a capable, ambitious worker.

Hordes of Frogs Cover Lawns

NORWALK — (INS) — "And Aaron stretched out his hand . . . and the frogs came up and covered the land . . ."

Great hordes of the amphibians, estimated at several hundred thousand, swarmed from Willow Brook pond here and completely blanketed many lawns and yards.

Tom Dimond, a resident near the pond, said today that fish, which eat frog eggs and tadpoles, had disappeared from the pond with the result that nearly every egg hatched. He said his lawn was alive with the inch-long amphibians.

FIND BODY OF LUCAS FARMER

Relatives and Neighbor Bring Pleasant Hill Reservoir Victim to Surface.

After using grappling hooks for more than 25 hours, searchers found the body of Arthur W. Watson, 54, farmer living near Lucas yesterday afternoon at the Pleasant Hill reservoir not far from the spot where he had been seen fishing late Saturday.

The search for Watson's body began early Sunday after his son, Harold, 15, told Richland county authorities that his father had disappeared during a night-time fishing outing near Perrysville.

Relatives and neighbors searched the reservoir all day Sunday. The body was found by Carl Watson, 589 McPherson street, another of the dead man's sons; a nephew, John Johnson, who lived with Watson; and a neighbor, Lawrence Culler. All were in a boat.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson said the body was located about 30 feet off shore near the place where Watson had been fishing, and in about 15 feet of water.

The grapling hook which the men used caught in the shirt of the dead man. The hook was 30 feet long and had been made by Watson, Culler and Johnson yesterday after shorter hooks had

REVEAL LOTTERY

Federal Indictments Name 63 Individuals, One Corporation.

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Two federal grand jury indictments naming 63 individuals and one corporation from 10 states and the republics of Cuba and Panama and uncovering what investigators believed "the biggest lottery operation in the country" were announced today by U. S. District Attorney John C. Lehr.

The indictments, charging mail fraud and conspiracy in connection with operation of the Republica de Cuba Hospital funds lottery, Havana, Cuba, were returned June 1 but were ordered suppressed by Federal Judge Ernest A. O'Brien to facilitate arrest of the defendants at 11 a. m. today.

The indictments climaxed a two-year nationwide investigation.

ARMY TO CUT DEEPLY INTO DOCTOR RANKS

50 Physicians, Dentists From 8 Area Counties Answer Military Call.

GET EXAMS TODAY

18 to 20 Mansfielders Among Those Expected to Receive Commissions.

Within a month, Mansfield will be left with only about 60 per cent of the number of physicians practicing here a year ago, it was learned today following a one-day visit here by an Army medical officer recruiting board.

Exact figures were not announced, but 18 or 20 Mansfield doctors are known to have been among the 50 physicians and dentists from eight northern Ohio counties who applied yesterday for army commissions. In addition four dentists from the city also applied for commissions in the dental corps.

All those who applied with the Medical recruiting board are to receive physical examinations in Columbus today or tomorrow. Approximately half of the group went to Columbus this morning, and the rest will go tomorrow.

In recent weeks, 75 or 80 per cent of those applying for medical and dental commissions have passed their examinations and have been accepted.

If this same rate holds true for the Mansfield applicants—and the acceptance is expected to be at least that high, it is estimated that from 12 to 15 of the 45 active physicians in the city today will be in army service within a month.

Ten physicians and four dentists already have left the city for army service. The city a year ago had 55 doctors in active practice.

Major H. S. Perry, who was in charge of the medical recruiting board here, announced that 50 doctors and six dentists from an eight-county area applied for commissions yesterday. Most of the men were between the ages of 28 and 45, although there were several older. One physician who is 53 years old turned in his application.

"Mansfield has responded very well to the army's call for medical officers," Major Perry said. "As for the district generally, there were many doctors and dentists

CHOOSES DEATH TO SAVE 200

Pilot Crashes Faltering Plane Into Side Of Hangar.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Army pilots at Mills Field said today Lieut James H. Mitchell of Cleveland, chose death for himself in preference to death or injuries for 200 others.

Lieut. Mitchell, they said, crashed his fighter plane yesterday to avoid hitting 200 men in a hanger. As it was the plane hit a side of the big building, killed Mitchell and an enlisted man on the ground and set fire to the hangar.

Eyewitnesses said Mitchell's fast ship developed motor trouble as it came down near the hangar for a landing.

Housewives, Here's A Chance To Share In $75 In Prizes

A hot weather menu contest, in which $75 in prizes will be awarded for the best menus and recipes submitted, is announced on Page 8 of today's News-Journal.

The contest gives homemakers the opportunity to pass along to others their favorite hot weather menu recipes, and gives them a chance to compete for the $75 in prizes. Grand prize is a $25 war savings bond. There's nothing to buy, and the contest is absolutely free.

All menus and recipes submitted must be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and must be accompanied by a coupon which appears on Page 8 of today's News-Journal and will be repeated later.

The recipes and menus will be published in The News-Journal on Tuesday, June 30. There are four classifications in the contest: a Sunday supper, a family picnic, a Vitamin luncheon, and a war worker's box lunch. In the first three classifications, a complete menu and the contestant's favorite recipe from the menu must be submitted. On the box lunch menu, no recipe is required but a three-day schedule for lunches must be submitted.

Each contestant may submit as many menus as desired in each or all of the classifications. Entries are to be mailed or brought to the Hot Weather Menu Contest Editor of The News-Journal.

Prizes will be distributed as follows: three prizes in each of the four classifications — $5.00 first prize, $3.00 second, and $2 third. In addition there will be the two grand prizes of a $25 war bond, and $10 in war savings stamps.

Contestants should bear in mind that their menus must be rich in vitamins — featuring the kind of foods that will help make a stronger nation.

As Fourth AEF Arrives In North Ireland

Members of a United States armored force unit, part of the fourth A. E. F. to arrive in North Ireland, play Chinese checkers as they await disembarkation. The convoy of which they were part was described as the greatest convoy to ever cross the Atlantic.

Richland Boys, 18 To 20, To Register 2 Days, June 27-30

Richland county boys in the 18-to-20 age bracket will register June 27 and June 30, the county's three draft boards were notified by state selective service headquarters today.

The registration will cover all males born on or after Jan. 1, 1922, and on or before June 30, 1924. Registration hours will be from 12 noon to 6 p. m. on Saturday, June 27, and from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Tuesday, June 30.

State draft officials explained that the registration will be conducted in the manner of the third and fourth registrations by volunteer registrars under the jurisdiction of the chairmen of local draft boards, in general at local board offices.

Under the selective service law, 18 and 19-year-old youths will not be subject to compulsory military service until they reach the age of 20 after being required to register. However, they will be required to have registration certificates with them at all times.

Meanwhile, Col. Chester W. Goble, state selective service director, instructed local boards that the deferment of men with dependents have not been changed since April 21, despite various interpretations which have been placed on a bill now in the final stages of congressional action.

Goble's statement followed reports that all married men, regardless of dependency status, would be granted a blanket deferment for perhaps as long as six months. These reports apparently originated from the new bill before congress, which would merely authorize the president to grant deferment.

BREAKS STRIKE

WLB Orders Hiring of Other Workers in Walkout.

FALL RIVER, Mass.—(AP)—For the first time since the United States entered the war, the federal government today obtained new employes to take the jobs of men on strike in a privately-owned industry.

Hiring of replacements was called for yesterday by the national war labor board when 125 employes of the Arkwright corporation textile mill declined to end a strike that started eight days ago over demands for wage increases aggregating $81.81 a week.

The plant employs about 1,280 workers, most of whom were left idle when the strike halted the production line. George H. Bradbury, chairman of a committee representing the strikers, said they "are 100 per cent American and do not want to stop war production, but they must protect their rights and freedom as American citizens."

CHECK BOOKS

State Examiners Called To Study Canton Treasury Records.

CANTON —(INS)— State examiners were auditing the books today of Walter A. Baum, 58, silver-haired city treasurer who resigned yesterday when City Auditor Robert E. Beck called in investigators from the Ohio Bureau of Inspection.

Beck, in suggesting a conference of city officials and examiners to Mayor Edward S. Folk, wrote "the audit is incomplete but information so far revealed would tend to show that Mr. Baum is guilty of malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance in the administration of his office."

HITS PRATTLE

Australian Urges Women to Refrain From Chattering.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Col. Frederick George Sutton, member of the Australian military mission, said today that one way American women could help the United Nations win the war was "to refrain from chattering" — and get the menfolk to do the same.

He was backed up in this by Mrs. Jimmy Doolittle, wife of the flier who led the raid on Japan. "There is too much idle talk," she said.

SOLDIER HELD FOLLOWING RIOT

Negro Charged With Stabbing Police Officer.

TUCSON, Ariz.—(INS)—A Negro soldier was held for trial on charges of assault with a deadly weapon today in the aftermath of what police called a riot early yesterday in front of the Negro-American Legion dugout.

The soldier, Private Russell House, was arrested after he assertedly stabbed Police Officer Paul H. Bohardt five times during a melee in which 25 Negro soldiers participated.

The melee ensued, witnesses said, when white officers attempted to enforce the midnight curfew for soldiers.

THREE ARRESTED

Trio Held In Havana on Charge of Smuggling Tires.

HAVANA —(INS)— Three men who police believed were Americans were under arrest today on charges of smuggling tires. They said they were James W. Crotty, John E. Alexander and Forrest J. Johnson but refused to say where they lived or what was their nationality.

On motion of the price control commission, which has classed smuggling as a "fifth columnist" activity, the suspects were held for trial in the urgency court.

CLUB BURNS

Loss In Troy Fire Estimated At More Than $10,000.

TROY—(INS)—Loss to the Troy Country club which was destroyed by fire yesterday, was estimated today at between $10,000 and $15,000, all of which is covered by insurance.

The blaze resulted from the explosion of a boiler in the club's kitchen, firemen said.

STEP UP PLANS FOR WAR CHEST

Officials Call Meeting of Nearly 90 Organizations To Session Monday.

Plans for Mansfield's war chest campaign next November took further shape yesterday afternoon when the executive board of the Mansfield Community Fund met to consider the war chest organization which will roll all war relief drives, exclusive of the Red Cross, into one major campaign.

Approximately 90 persons from practically as many organizations were named to participate in a general meeting to be held Monday, June 29, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, when an executive committee will be elected and a plan of operation presented.

Robert C. Remy, Fund president, named W. C. Mansfield, realtor, as chairman of a nominating committee to report at the meeting. Other members ap-

CHANGE PLANS

Navy Cancels Building of Five Giant Battleships.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Sen. Ralph O. Brewster, R., Me., said today the navy has abandoned plans to build five 60,000-ton super-battleships authorized by congress and will expand its aircraft carrier program instead.

Brewster, a member of the senate naval affairs committee and of the special senate committee investigating the war program, said he did not know whether this meant that the day of the battleship was past in the United States navy, but that he hardly expected revival of the program.

The five super-battleships, authorized in connection with the two-ocean navy, were to have been the biggest and most powerful in the world. While preliminary work has started on them, none has reached the stage of keel laying.

HE GETS IN

Man Has Finger Amputated So He Can Join Navy.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—When a stiff finger caused his rejection as a naval aviation cadet, 22-year-old Richard Guy Vaughn spent $15 to have the digit amputated.

Then Vaughn was re-examined and now he's been enlisted for navy flight instruction.

IT'S A LAUGH

'Girl's Part' Of Song Flashed On Army Camp Screen.

CAMP BLANDING, Fla.—(AP)—A roar of laughter went up in one Camp Blanding theater when a movie giving words and music of popular songs for community singing was on.

First came parts for the boys to sing—and they did. Then came the girl's part — and there was dead silence. There wasn't a girl in the house.

U. S. Fliers Bag 7 Ships; Rome Boasts Victory

Italy Claims Toll of 20-30 British Vessels In Mediterranean Battle; American Airmen Hit Japanese Carrier And Sink Cruiser.

(By United Press)

A third great naval-air battle, in which American airmen already have damaged at least six Jap ships and sunk another, raged in the fog-shrouded north Pacific today while the Axis claimed to have sunk or damaged between 20 and 30 British warships and merchantmen in the Mediterranean.

In the three-day battle off Italy, Rome admitted the loss of three warships sunk or damaged.

On the land fronts, great armies were locked in some of the fiercest fighting of the war in Russia, Libya and China.

Off the sword-like archipelago of Alaska's Aleutian islands the third battle of the Pacific was fought in heavy mist. United States Army and Navy planes drove into an attack to knock the Japanese from their foothold on outlying, desolate islands west of Dutch Harbor naval base.

The American airmen already have damaged at least six Japanese vessels, perhaps seven, and have sunk another in the Aleutian battle that has been under way with rising and falling intensity since the Japanese air raids on Dutch Harbor June 3.

The toll of Japanese ships off the Aleutians, including a damaged aircraft carrier and at least three cruisers, brought a sharp rise in the already heavy Japanese fleet casualties in the U. S. victory chalked up in the Midway-Coral sea battles.

A navy communique listed six enemy vessels hit off the Aleutians and Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the air corps, revealed in a telegram of congratulations to the Glenn L. Martin aircraft plant at Baltimore that army medium bombers in three attacks had sunk a Japanese cruiser and scored torpedo hits on a carrier.

While the Aleutian battle continued a fierce naval-air struggle was under way in the Mediterranean between British warships and Axis sea and air forces, mostly Italian, but the course of the battle remained obscure and the only accounts were contained in Italian radio claims which hitherto have proved to be extravagant.

The Italians claimed the sinking or damaging of between 20 and 30 British warships and merchant ships in the battle which began Sunday in the narrow

IMMINENT: Nazis Mass Planes And Men For Kharkov Attack

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—Germany hurled seven artillery regiments and her famed "Big Berthas" against Russian defenses before beleaguered Sevastopol today while other Soviet forces awaited a new enemy push by at least 500,000 men on the Kharkov front.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—A new German offensive by at least 500,000 men, with every plane and piece of mechanized equipment they can muster, was believed imminent today on the Kharkov front, where the Russians knocked out 180 tanks yesterday.

Fierce fighting still raged at the Crimean port of Sevastopol, and last midnight's Soviet communique indicated that fighting of major proportions had been resumed on the Kalinin front, northwest of Moscow.

The first communique today said that although German attacks at Kharkov and Sevastopol had been continuous during the night, there was no important change on the front, as a whole, and that at least 1,950 more Germans had been killed.

On the Sevastopol front, it said, Russian units, with the help of the Red fleet, beat off fierce German attacks. The Germans were battered from their positions on a sector of the Bryansk front with 600 killed, the communique reported. In two days' fighting on the Leningrad front, Russian units in two days have killed 200 Germans, the communique said.

(Axis reports heard in London said Italians had joined Germans in a new land, sea and air offensive against Leningrad that already had been in prog-

NIGHT ATTACK: Fliers Tell Of Torpedoing Jap Troopship

(By Associated Press)

PEARL HARBOR, T. H.—How the U. S. navy's long-range patrol bombers discovered the Japanese fleet off Midway, a night torpedo attack against the invaders, and thrilling rescues of navy fliers from rubber life boats were disclosed today in new accounts of the battle.

Captain Logan Ramsey of Philadelphia, operations officer for the army, navy and marine corps land-based planes at Midway island, said the night torpedo attack was the first time in history the planes had been so operated.

The crew of one patrol plane, forced down by fuel shortage, were eight days at sea fighting off sharks.

Ramsey said the achievements of the large patrol bombers (PYB's) in attacking the enemy formed one of the greatest chapters in the newest form of naval action.

He estimated the Japanese threw several hundred aircraft into the battle. Other reports have stated most of the enemy planes were destroyed.

Surrounded by heroes of the engagement, Captain Ramsey outlined the general action and each in turn filled in the details.

He said Ensign Jewell Reid, 28, of Paducah, Ky., made the first discovery of the Japanese fleet June 3.

Here is Reid's story:

"We had a job to do and tried to do our utmost.

straits of Sicily, but the British admiralty made no comment presumably because the action still is under way.

The Italians, making the most of the battle in a probable attempt to stiffen the morale of the war-weary Italian people, said that 10 or 11 British ships had been destroyed including cruisers and destroyers and 11 others including a battleship and an aircraft carrier damaged in "what almost certainly is the greatest naval-air action of the war."

The Germans added a claim of destruction of a British cruiser and a destroyer in the Mediterranean and the damaging of three other vessels.

Italian warships joined the battle in its later stages, the Italians said, and routed the British forces which had come from Gibraltar "to the urgent relief of the British forces in Libya."

A fleet of 300 or more Italian torpedo planes and bombers was said to have participated in the battle in which hits were claimed on a British battleship of the 31,000-ton Malaya class and two aircraft carriers, the 14,000-ton Argus and 22,600-ton Eagle.

The Italian high command sought to give the impression that its losses had been almost negligible to the damage done to the enemy. The sinking of a heavy Italian cruiser and damage to two destroyers and another unidentified fleet unit was all that was admitted.

The Mediterranean naval-air battle must be regarded as a part of the battle of Libya, where the Axis armored forces of Col. Gen. Erwin Rommel scored an important success today.

The British high command in Cairo announced that Gen. Neil M. Ritchie has abandoned El Gazala on the Mediterranean coast, last point of the original British line in Libya, to escape entrapment of the imperial forces in the area after an Axis thrust northward to the coast above Acroma.

The loss of El Gazala meant that the British have been thrown back upon another defense of Tobruk, 40 miles east of El Gazala, where imperial troops withstood a seven-months' siege in 1941.

It meant that Rommel now was in a position—after smashing the British line from El Gazala down to Bir Hacheim—to unleash a grand assault upon Tobruk or attempt to invest the stronghold and swing around it in a swift drive toward the Egyptian border 90 miles away as he did once before.

The Germans and Italians claimed that large British forces had been trapped around El Gazala—Rome spoke of six divisions totalling perhaps 75,000 men—but this was denied by the British who said Gen. Ritchie had succeeded in extricating his men in "a magnificent fight."

Armored weight and fire power gave Rommel his victory and the loss of El Gazala had seemed inevitable since the breaking of the British southern flank at Bir Hacheim last week, enabling the Axis forces to swing northward toward the coast, inside the British minefield defense barrier.

The British today held two strong points for the defense of Tobruk, Acroma which is 13 miles southwest of the stronghold and El Adem to the south. If the British are able to muster sufficient strength at these two points for a strong counter-attack Rommel's plans may still be upset.

On the Russian battlefront the Germans threw great masses of infantry, tanks and planes into drives on five fronts from Leningrad to the besieged Black sea fortress of Sevastopol, described in Scandinavian and Turkish neutral quarters as "the most violent fighting of the war on the Russian front."

Chinese Urge Pacific Offensive

BULLETIN

CHUNGKING —(INS)— The Chinese cabinet held an emergency session today to discuss a report that a Japanese invasion of Soviet Siberia is imminent. Large numbers of Japanese troops were said to be pouring into Japanese-held Manchukuo.

CHUNGKING —(AP)— A government spokesman urged today the immediate launching of a major Pacific offensive be given at least equal consideration with possible drives in other war theaters.

If the United Nations "continue to be complacent" toward Japan, he warned, she may become "the most difficult of the Axis powers to defeat."

The spokesman enumerated three objectives of Japanese drives in China:

1. To eliminate remaining United Nations bases which might be used to attack Japan;
2. To seize strategic points for attacking the United Nations;
3. To consolidate dominated areas and develop their resources.

Six More Sinkings Bring Total to 271

(By Associated Press)

Six newly announced ship sinkings in the submarine-dotted western Atlantic put the war total of destroyed Allied and neutral vessels in that area at 271 today while the navy pondered the fate of an American freighter missing for four months.

Navy reports said the ever-active U-boats had picked off two American merchantmen in Cuban waters, a large Panamanian cargo vessel in the Gulf of Mexico, a Norwegian tanker off South America, an unidentified ship in the Atlantic, and a British schooner off the British West Indies.

Naval and shipping circles were discussing the disappearance without a trace of the New Orleans freighter Miraflores of the Standard Fruit and Steamship company, last sighted Feb. 15.

Neither the ship nor its crew has been reported since last seen off the Haitian coast, the navy revealed yesterday.

TRAIN WRECKED

Saboteurs Blamed for Derailing of Berlin Express.

LONDON—(AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said the Berlin correspondent of Svenska Dagbladet reported today that the Berlin-Koenigsberg express was derailed June 8 and that German authorities attributed the wreck to sabotage.

The Germans were said to have offered a reward of 100,000 marks ($40,000) for the arrest of the saboteurs.

Bomb Proves Dud, Water Hose Dry In Toledo 'Raid'

TOLEDO—(INS)—City air raid wardens had a bit of trouble during their first practice, what with bombs that wouldn't light and hoses that wouldn't spray, but they believe everything is under control now and expect better results at the next class.

Trouble started right at the beginning of the drill when the incendiary bomb, which had come from England refused to ignite. Several matches were applied before it decided to cooperate. When they finally had a fire, the novice wardens found their hose would not operate. District Chief Roy Davis decided to investigate and peered into the barrel of the hose. He received a blast of water in the face, when his assistant unexpectedly began to pump.

RULES PRICES

Miami University Man Named by State OPA Director.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—H. T. Beckmann, state OPA director, announced today the appointment of C. H. Sandage, head of the department of marketing at Miami university, as acting Ohio price executive.

Sandage will rule on questions relating to coverage and compliance arising from administration of the general maximum price regulations.

Desert Tank Battle Roars to Climax

CAIRO—(INS)—The great tank battle in the Libyan desert roared to a climax today as reports from the front said the position of the British eighth army was "critical." But latest information refuted the Axis claim that the armored units had smashed north of Acroma and reached the coast of the Mediterranean.

The latest British communique, covering operations through Sunday night, said the defense positions around Acroma, west of Tobruk, were being firmly held, and that the Tobruk-Gazala highway was still open. This was denial of an Italian claim that the Axis columns had succeeded in cutting the highway between Tobruk and Gazala, which is 40 miles to the west.

The fighting was reported on a furious and heavy scale with losses in equipment high on both sides. It was admitted that British losses had reached a peak on Sunday's fighting.

The action was described as "fluid" which indicated that the purpose was destruction of each other's equipment rather than to hold on breach fixed lines of defenses.

The Axis attack was said to be directed northwards in an effort to split the British forces at Gazala and Tobruk as a preliminary move to encircling the garrisons before attempting to drive east into Egypt.

But the British were declared to be counter-attacking vigorously while other columns attacked the enemy's rear. Axis forces were said to have been cleared out of the El Adem area, east of Acroma and southeast of Tobruk.

Vichy Reveals More European Air Raids

ANKARA, Turkey — (UP) — Vichy French sources reported today that big Allied planes had been bombing Axis targets in southeastern Europe for several weeks before four United States Army bombing planes landed in Turkey Friday.

Informants asserted that the raids had been made intermittently but that the Allies had remained silent regarding them, and the Axis commands in turn had decided to say nothing.

Allied military sources said there was but one clear point regarding the United States plane raid—that there were plenty more big new United States bombers where the four which landed in Turkey had been based.

They said the bases would be kept secret in order to keep the Axis guessing.

Opinion here was still that the American planes had bombed the Rumanian oil fields from Middle Eastern bases and military sources said the attack—or attacks—meant the opening of a new aerial front which might force the Germans to spread their air force still thinner.

Grappling For Body Of Reservoir Victim

Dr. L. B. McCullough, Richland county coroner, said that death was due to accidental drowning and that Watson had been dead since about 10 p. m. Saturday.

The coroner said Watson apparently slipped and fell into deep water and was unsuccessful in his attempts to kick off the heavy wading boots he was wearing. One boot was gone when the body was found and the other had been partialy kicked off.

Harold Watson told authorities he drove his father to the reservoir Saturday at 5 p. m. and had made arrangements to pick him up early Sunday morning. When he failed to find his father upon arrival Sunday, he called for help.

Watson lived on the Culler farm, about a mile and a half southeast of Lucas. He was formerly employed at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company plant.

BRITISH BELIEVE THEY HAVE ANTIDOTE FOR MUSTARD GAS

(By International News Service)

LONDON—The British Homeopathic association, after recently experimenting on several doctors and civil defense workers who allowed themselves to be burned by mustard gas, believe they have discovered a powder which may be swallowed as an antidote for mustard gas.

The experiments are still proceeding at the Homeopathic hospital in London and at A. R. P. posts in Glasgow. The association is submitting a report to the Ministry of Home Security.

Mustard oil, the liquid which produces the gas, was dropped on the arms of the volunteers and caused blisters, which normally would take a month to heal.

They then swallowed the powder. This, it is claimed, counteracts the worst effects.

Dr. F. B. Julian, who is in charge of the experiments in the north of England, at the Liverpool Hahnemann hospital said: "The results are promising and interesting.

"Some of the doctors did not take the powder so that a comparison could be made.

"The antidote should prove valuable for the easy treatment of gas cases under war conditions. It has to be swallowed at the time of the burn."

Judge Listens To Witnesses In Elyria Murder Trial.

ELYRIA—(INS)—The trial of Andrew Doinoff, 36-year-old steel worker accused of murdering his second wife, Anna, 26, went into its second day today as the three-judge tribunal heard the testimony of witnesses.

Doinoff, according to witnesses, one of whom was his second cousin, stabbed his wife with a butcher knife on April 6, a few hours after his mother's funeral.

Discarded In Days Of Plenty But Valuable Now

More than 500,000 tires in this mountainous scrap rubber piles at the Firestone Tire & Rubber company's rubber reclaiming plant at Akron, O., are now undergoing examination to help in keeping the cars of production workers rolling. When properly repaired, many of these tires, discarded in the days when tires were plentiful and inexpensive, will give civilian motorists many miles of additional service. Those tires found totally unfit for repair are returned to the scrap piles to be processed into reclaimed rubber.

Mass 500,000 Men With All Types of Equipment For Offensive.

reas three days. German and Italian broadcasters said Axis troops in invasion barges landed behind Russian lines from the Baltic, presumably while the Germans were bombarding Kronstadt fortress.)

The fact that enough tanks were in action on the Kharkov front for the Russians to destroy or damage 180 indicated that the Germans intended making a major effort there.

Field Marshal Fedor von Bock has concentrated more than 500,000 men on the Kharkov front, and it seemed certain that he intended using them soon. Thus far, it was believed, he has used only a fraction in the attack that followed the lull in the battle of Kharkov.

Observers thought he was using herds of tanks in an effort to soften up the Russian defenses, before throwing in his main body of troops.

The midnight communique said that "in other sectors" Russian aircraft destroyed or damaged 64 tanks and 220 vehicles loaded with troops.

Two combined infantry and tank attacks on the Kalinin front were repulsed, the communique asserted.

That also was the story at Sevastopol, where the Germans came on, hour by hour, and died by thousands.

It was understood that the Soviet Black sea fleet had come to the aid of Sevastopol, its big guns bombarding German gun positions.

(Allied observers in London were encouraged by the reports of all battles on the Russian front. Thus far, they said, the Germans and Rumanians had paid thousands of lives and an unestimated amount of valuable material for nothing, and the Russians nowhere showed signs of weakening.)

who failed to undertand the import of the board coming here to interview applicants.

"It is possible that physicians and dentists may have another opportunity—when the board returns here on June 29 to confer commissions on those accepted—to make their applications. However, this will be true only if there is no change in the current situation. And this situation may change fast."

Several Mansfield physicians and dentists have applied in recent months for Naval commissions, and must obtain releases from the Navy before they can apply for Army commissions.

Commenting on the forthcoming curtailment in number of doctors available in Mansfield, Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, said today.

"This means, of course, that there will not be so many doctors to go around. This puts an added responsibility on all of us—to exercise all the rules of health and safety more strictly than ever before as to reduce illness and accident to a minimum."

Meanwhile, towns and villages in Richland county, outside of Mansfield, will be contacted by Fund executive board members this week in an effort to interest them in conducting individual drives for their own war relief quotas at the same time of the Mansfield campaign.

Shelby has already agreed to the plan. That city will have its own war chest commitee and will combine its anual Community Chest campaign and all war relief drives into one operation.

Mansfield's chest that is expected not to exceed $135,000, will include the following war relief drives, U. S. O., United China Relief, British War Relief, Russian Relief, Greek Relief and possibly the Queen Wilhelmina Relief for the Dutch and the War Prisoners Relief Fund. The Christmas Seal Sale organization will also be invited to participate in the chest instead of holding its own drive a month later.

O.K. FUNDS TO DOUBLE NAVY

Legislators Approve Eight And Half Billion Appropriation.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— An $8,550,000,000 ship construction measure—an unprecedented program designed ultimately to double the size of the United States fleet—was approved today by the house naval committee.

The measure, demonstrating the navy's increasing emphasis on plane carrier and pointedly omitting any provision for new battleships, will provide for more than 1,400 ships of all types, including more than 400 combatant craft in the carrier-cruiser-destroyer category.

"We saw 11 ships, including two battleships and heavy cruisers and troop ships. We spent several hours in the vicinity getting all the information we could. I don't think we were seen.

Captain Ramsey interjected:

"That night of June 3 we decided to launch a night torpedo attack by Navy flying boats. It was a very hazardous mission. We wanted to hit some troopships and give the slant-eyes a bath. This was a difficult job. It had never been done before. The distances were very great."

Lieut. William Richards, 31, of Collingswood, N. J., executive officer to Ramsey related:

"When we came into sight of the enemy fleet it was quite visible. It was impossible to distinguish types but we saw two columns of large ships with several ships ahead and astern. They had no lights. They were heading straight for Midway.

"I gave the attack signal. We made a long straight approach to our objective and encountered no anti-aircraft fire. They didn't even know we were coming, so we were able to get in close and let go our torpedo without opposition.

My two rear look outs reported a huge explosion and heavy black smoke on the ship we attacked. Three of our ships dropped torpedoes, two of which definitely were hits. Our hit was on a big troopship of about 8,000 tons. A second transport was hit of about the same size.

There were some 40 men in this historic mission.

Three of the flying boats got back to their bases. The one commanded by Lieut. Probst ran out of fuel and landed on the ocean. They floated on their rubber life boats for three days before they were rescued at 6:30 p. m., June 6.

OWN HIGHWAYS HELP DEFEAT HITLER'S PLAN

He Built Them to Aid Army But Now They Prove 'White Elephants.'

(Editor's Note: Louis P. Lochner, chief of the former Berlin bureau of the Associated Press and Wide World, analyzes Hitler's transportation difficulties in this last of a daily series for The News-Journal. Lochner has just returned from five months' internment in Germany.)

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

NEW YORK —(Wide World)— Adolf Hitler's widely advertised super-highways loom as an important factor in the undoing of the German war machine—paradoxical though that may seem.

The longer the war lasts, the more evident it is becoming that Hitler bet on the wrong horse in devoting the nation's energies, so far as the transportation problem is concerned, chiefly to construction of super-highways rather than to improvement or even upkeep of Germany's complicated and far flung railway system.

Hitler's military strategy may be summed up in the word which has since 1939 become a commonplace in every language—the "blitzkrieg."

Provided the blitz idea worked, Hitler was right in honeycombing the country with splendid highways, unexampled in Europe though second nature to every American.

Millions of jobless were given work at a time when the unemployment problem was uppermost in Nazi minds, while simultaneously roads were constructed on which German troops in the event of war could be moved to any frontier at greater speed than any other country could match.

Hitler thus was deep in Poland before the Poles could even gasp. He poured his millions into Holland, Belgium and France, having assembled them at his own frontiers with lightning rapidity, while the roads of the others were cluttered with mobilizing forces.

But when the war became one of years instead of months, the reverse side of this picture was turned up: Fuel grew scarcer and scarcer, the air force claimed the best gasoline, lubricants became a major problem, wear and tear of cars proved far greater than new production or the seizure of cars in conquered countries.

It suddenly became evident that the much-maligned steam railway was a far more economical mode of transportation for long hauls than were motor lorries and trucks.

The farther the German army moved from its home base, the more essential the railway became.

Hitler during his six and a half year regime before outbreak of the war had neglected the railways.

Although by conservative estimate, 78 per cent of the moving load in Germany is carried by railway—with 20 per cent by inland waterways (mostly frozen over in winter) and 2 per cent by truck—locomotive plants were in part converted into armament plants.

True, the government appropriated as much as a million marks to the federal railways, which previously had been more than self-supporting. But this money was earmarked for political and social objectives.

On the political side, the virtual mobilization of the entire railway system early in September of each year, when millions of Nazis flocked, transportation-free, to Nurnberg for the annual party conclave, cost a pretty penny—besides subjecting the system to great wear and tear.

There were also the numerous district party conventions and national demonstrations of various kinds for which the railways had to move the Nazi believers.

On the social side, labor leader Robert F. Ley's vast "power through joy" program with cheap excursions for the workers taxed the capacity of the railways further.

After one year of Hitler regime, in fact, the income of the federal railways (all railways in Germany are government-owned) became hardly sufficient to cover operating expenses. Reserves were drawn on constantly.

Passenger coaches were allowed to deteriorate. New freight cars were constructed in but insufficient numbers. According to Der Volkswirt, a majority of Germany's 600,000 freight cars were obsolete by 1938.

Even during the first winter of the war—that of 1939-40—the transportation system proved inadequate. Adverse weather conditions made the breakdown more evident than otherwise. Fuel and foodstuffs did not move as they should, with the result that Berlin, for instance, suffered a winter of privations.

The winter of 1940-41 proved somewhat better since weather conditions were more favorable. But the constant movement of troops into the Balkans early in 1941 again meant a shortage of railway equipment at home and led to a constant reduction in the number of passenger trains running, and often made for huge accumulations of freight in large centers.

The winter of 1941-42 proved the worst ever. The inadequacy of the railway system now became so obvious as to cause alarm in official circles.

Hitler took the unusual step in the Reichstag speech of April 26 of assuring the German people that next winter transportation would be better than in the past winter:

"The German Reichbahn during the next winter, no matter where it may find us, will do greater justice to its tasks than during the past winter. Beginning with the locomotives and continuing through armored cars, hauling machines and tractors, the army in the east will be better equipped."

It was hard to believe one's ears when these words were uttered. With the most terrible winter in 130 years just closed, how could Hitler tell his people that another winter of war was in store for them?

The only logical explanation for this lapse in psychological understanding of his own people was the fact that there had obviously been so much dissatisfaction with the transportation system that some sort of assurance from the very highest quarters was essential—even at the expense of admitting that another winter of war lies ahead.

In that assurance lay the confession that Hitler, who according to his closest folowers never miscalculates, had slipped in the matter of transportation.

MOOSE LEGION PLANS MEETING

Initiation and Banquet Will Be Held in Mansfield Sunday By Central Ohio Group.

More than 500 members of the Central Ohio Legion of Moose lodge No. 63 are expected to attend a meeting Sunday afternoon and evening, June 21 at the Mansfield Moose home when officers for the coming year will be elected and installed.

Sessions will open at 2 p. m., when a class of candidates will be initiated. P. J. Pahl, noble north Moose, will conduct initiation ceremonies. Election and installation of officers will follow the initiation.

After a banquet for Legionnaires and their families a floor show will be presented followed by dancing to the music of Ira Metcalf's orchestra.

Banquet arrangements are in charge of George Marks with West Moose P. W. Ritchie, assisted by Louis Zeller, in charge of the floor show.

Out of town lodges represented at the meeting, will include those from Bucyrus, Galion, Carey, New Riegel, Bellvue, Marion, New London and Willard.

At the time the Spanish-American War broke out, the U. S. Army consisted of 2,000 officers and 25,000 men.

WAITS WORD ON REQUEST FOR 2 MORE FIREMEN

Seeburger Fails to Get Reply From Mayor on Plea; Force Curtailed.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger was still waiting today for an answer from Mayor W. J. Locke on a request for two additional men for the fire department during the vacation period to keep the department up to its standard fire-fighting efficiency.

The fire chief said today that he had given the mayor both a verbal and written request for two new firemen last Monday but that he had received no word on either as yet.

Chief Seeburger said that he hoped the mayor would bring the matter up at the special meeting of council last Friday night but that the mayor had not acted.

The additional men are needed more than ever, according to Seeburger, because two members of the department are off duty on sick leave while two others are on vacation.

"This curtails our power," said Seeburger, "and leaves us with only five men to man three pieces of equipment. At least two men are needed to handle any piece of fire equipment efficiently.

Chief Seeburger said that the department had barely enough men to operate on its regular schedule even when all men were available but that the loss of two men for vacation and another two for sickness "decreased efficiency."

"At least two additional men are needed during the summer months," said Seeburger, "if we're going to keep all of our equipment ready for immediate service. I have asked the mayor to bring this to the attention of council immediately."

Seeburger explained that the Central station was the one which suffered because of the lack of men. He said that it supplies replacements when the other stations have men off for vacation or sickness. Two men must be kept at each of the outside stations to man the trucks, according to the chief.

"Of course, I'm hoping that one of the sick men will get back soon," said the chief," but even then we're operating on a dangerous margin."

Family Donates Its Tresses To U. S. War Effort

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—Mrs. Dorothy Trinkler of St. Louis, and her three small daughters, Bertha, 6, Betty 4, and Patsy, 2, will donate their blond tresses to the war effort.

Mrs. Trinkler, whose husband has a brother and two nephews in the armed forces, said she cuts the little girls' hair each summer anyway and is willing to postpone the cutting, "to insure the maximum amount possible."

The war production board at Washington, so far has not made any request for hair, but has explained that makers of aerial instruments had done so in the past. The hair must be untouched by dyes or hot curling irons and is used in the manufacture of hygrometers. Hygrometers are used in checking weather conditions.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, 1942.

It would be wonderful if young men at home could get as good physical training and development as they get in the army.

Reporters for the new army newspaper, "Yank," will carry revolvers—but other newsgatherers will continue to take the usual chances.

Charles F. Kettering speaking: "You can shoot a hole right through a leakproof gasoline tank for airplanes and it won't leak. If some of our ideas were like that, they would perhaps be better."

Inventions for Victory

"NEVER say anything can't be done. Say instead that as yet no way has been found to do it."

That's the advice of a man who knows what he's talking about—a famous inventor and engineer. According to him, mechanical advances are being made even faster than usual today because of the pressure of war needs. Already we have new devices on our planes and tanks that enable them in many instances to outperform those made by our enemies.

We haven't stopped improving them and our other weapons, either. New war inventions are being produced all the time. More than 45,000 suggestions were sent in to the patent office last year by America's inventors, and 3,000 of them have been adopted to date. Some of these inventions have to do with new machines, like the outrigger tank that is really a rolling fortress, and the ground strafer airplane. Others concern such things as emergency food rations and lightweight armored clothing.

The last war hastened the development of many new products—the radio, stainless steel, and dozens of new alloys and metals. There's no telling yet what things will come out of today's shortages and needs.

Motorists Pay 'Use Tax' Again

THAT "use tax" on automobiles is to be continued, it appears, and July 1 is the date on which a new stamp must be conspicuously displayed on every car.

The new "use tax" stamp is to cost the motorist $5 and is to replace the $2.09 stamp bought early in the year to reach through until July 1.

Coming in the midst of uncertainty as to whether either tires or gasoline will be available for civilian driving during any considerable part of the year starting July 1, the idea of assessing this $5 tax seems rather absurd.

Even more deserving of criticism, however, is the fact that no check-up was made during the past five months to reveal violators of the law requiring payment of the $2.09 "use tax" and nothing has thus far been said to indicate that there will be enforcement after July 1.

Some statement should be made on this subject by proper officials as it is unfair that any motorists should be subjected to this assessment unless it is made compulsory upon all.

Read About One Woman's Work

ANY WOMAN who is feeling a little sorry for herself because she has to do a little extra work as a result of the war may consider the case of Mrs. B. W. McLorinan of Tacoma, Wash. Mrs. McLorinan has a husband who is a railway machinist, a son in the service, a daughter, 17, graduating from high school, and another daughter, 14. She does churchwork, plays the piano and vibraphone, used to sing till an injury to her vocal cords stopped that. She keeps house, gives cheer to her family—and builds houses.

The Tacoma Master Builders, an organization of contractors, counts her as one of its useful members. She recently did financing through FHA to the tune of $100,000 for the construction of 35 houses. They are pleasant little houses, and convenient. Men engaged in banking—or even building—do not always approve the first plans, but Mrs. McLorinan explains how they fit a woman's needs, and usually gets her way about them. They have large living-rooms, at least one really good-sized bedroom, kitchens with the latest efficiency tricks. They sell quickly as the market is always awaiting their completion.

Pattern for Standardized World

YES, "it's a small world, after all." How small it has become, people hardly realize yet. Take military weapons, for instance. Always in the past, nations have made their own weapons. Now Britain and the United States are standardizing their fighting tools, to make weapons and equipment interchangeable. It will be done on a vast scale, and other nations fighting on the same side will soon be using identical weapons, made by identical machinery.

If the war ends in a real peace, so that there can be economic unity and equal trade opportunities, this tendency may spread rapidly over the world. People in all the civilized countries could have, in large part, the same goods of a thousand kinds, made by like and interchangeable machinery. This would mean world unity to a degree hardly imagined yet.

War Hits Dope Traffic

THE WAR is doing one good thing—making life hard for the dope traffic by cutting down the supply. With little on hand, the peddlers have to adulterate their product. Morphine, once 85 per cent pure, is now sold (at much the same price) in a mixture containing only two or three per cent of the drug. To get the desired effect, the addict has to take much more than the usual dosage.

Civilized governments have for years been trying to get a grip on this dangerous habit. Perhaps the war will give them the leverage they need.

With distilleries going 90 per cent into war production, those who boast that they "can take it or leave it alone" may be placed in position to prove the latter part of their assertion.

That old bit of advice against overexcitement, "Keep your shirt on," is still good—unless it turns out that there's no shirt left to keep on.

With so many accomplishments credited to science, it seems odd that chemists can't promise anything more before year after next.

Another interesting thing to wait for will be choice of an actor to portray John Barrymore in a "cavalcade" by the same name.

ONLY THE BEGINNING

Russia and Japan Close-Mouthed

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Two nations now at peace with each other, but fighting desperately in the war on opposite sides, remain utter enigmas as to fighting strength, numbers of troops, capacity of production of war supplies, and every other detail essential to the military pattern. These are, of course, Russia and Japan.

Not only was Adolf Hitler fooled as to Russia's strength when he first attacked; he is still ignorant of her capacity. But that ignorance likewise applies to Great Britain, the United States, China, and all the other United Nations.

Japan fooled us and the British both very badly as to her strength prior to December 7. But she also fooled Hitler and Mussolini, not to mention the other Axis "partners." Today, according to the best information obtainable, Berlin is just as ignorant, not only as to Japanese strength but as to Japanese plans, as are London and Washington.

A PROMINENT official who has studied British airplane production estimated a few days ago that British and American production of war planes now exceeded those of the Axis powers by at least 50 per cent. He frankly admitted he had no idea of the Russian production, but made a guess that if it were added then the United Nations plane production would exceed the Axis two to one.

In this estimate he was making not one, but two guesses. For no one outside Japan really knows what Japanese production is. Very few people inside Japan know, and that goes double for Russia.

There is a great deal of disatisfaction in London and Washington over this lack of information as to Russian production. Russia tells Britain and the United States what she wants, but even with the lease-lend bait we do not get any information. Nor are our military and naval observers given a chance to follow the fighting on the ground and gain their own impressions.

Similarly, though Hitler sent Japan more than 1,000 Messerschmitts he has been given no more information about Japanese production than we have about Russian.

PERHAPS the answer is not so much that Japan does not trust Hitler's intentions, and Russia those of Britain and the U. S., as that they do not trust the secrecy of information once imparted to their allies. Though at peace as this is written there is no knowing how long Russia and Japan will so remain. It is quite possible therefore that they do not want to entrust valuable information even to their allies, fearing that through them it might become known to a feared enemy almost certain soon to become an open opponent.

For instance if Joseph Stalin entrusted all his military secrets to Washington and London he might suspect those secrets would find their way in time to Japan. And the same with Tokyo's fear that Berlin might prove a sieve to Moscow.

It is also possible that Stalin might think that if he told Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt just what forces he has in Eastern Siberia they would insist on some of them being brought back to help crush Hitler first.

Stalin wants to crush Hitler, but he is not in a hurry about it. Certainly he would not leave his backdoor ajar in order to expedite Hitler's defeat.

An S. O. S. Call

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

S. O. S! That's a strange sort of title to give a column, isn't it? A strange sort of plea for a columnist to make. Yet I'm making it for me and for all my kind, we who speak to you every day, trying to give you the dope, trying to buck you up.

And perhaps you've thought for all these years that they've just been words. Or perhaps not thought much about what lay behind them at all. Just accepted them. Never realized that there were men and women behind them, men and women like yourselves, tired, bewildered, discouraged, wondering desperately what they could say.

But we are just weak and confused men and women. Plenty of news at our fingertips, plenty of pity in our hearts. But how could we pass it on to you? How can we help you in these dreadful days?

I don't know. And so today I'm broadcasting an S. O. S., not for myself alone but for all columnists.

S. O. S!

Send us your strength. Our homes are crumbling around us just as yours are. Our boys are on the fighting line as yours are, some of them gone to that peace from which there will be no return. We are not just a column of words. We are of your own flesh and spirit.

HELP US BE BRAVE!

HELP US BE WISE!

HELP US KEEP THE FAITH!

We are not serving on the front line in Libya or France, in Australia or China. But we are serving on the front line here in America. And these words we write are the only bullets we have to give. We are fighting something worse than bombs. We are fighting fear and discouragement, disgust and indifference, terror and hate. This is our job. It is a hard job. It is a job that is almost beyond our strength.

S. O. S!

Help us. Sit down today and write to the man or woman whose words you read daily. Tell us to go on. Tell us to be brave. Bawl us out if you want to but let us feel the nearness of your humanity. Believe me, we need it. We need it as desperately as the soldiers in Libya need water or the fighters in China need food. We, too, follow a broken trail without a map.

Some serve in my regiment and some don't, but it doesn't matter—they are all serving the same cause. They're all putting their own lives behind them these days and trying to serve your lives. They're all heavy with heartache and confusion. Write to them. Tell them they mean something in your life. Tell them they have helped you. Tell them to go on.

S. O. S!.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, June 16, 1922.

Auto club advised motorists against taking week-end trips because roads in vicinity had been washed out by flood.

Frank Lahm, former resident, was here from Paris for a visit.

Mansfield drum corps returned from Bucyrus where it played at G. A. R. state encampment. Members were: Oliver L. Cunningham, fifer; H. W. Siddons, bass drummer, and Isaac Murphy, snare drummer.

W. W. Carter and Edward Nagle celebrated birthday anniversaries.

Miss Alfaretta Bell was among graduates of Ursuline convent in Tiffin.

J. C. Penney company was planning to open new store in Galion.

Miss Esther M. Hartman and Albert D. Murphy were married by Rev. N. A. Hassel.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Gustavus V, king of Sweden, was born at Drottningholm on June 16, 1858. During the absence or illness of his father Gustavus repeatedly acted as regent and was therefore already thoroughly versed in public affairs when he succeeded to the Swedish throne on Dec. 8, 1907. It was on this date the crown of Norway was separated from that of Sweden.

Timely Editorial

An Epigram Is Coined.

"It is much easier by far to do without food and drink and warmth than to lack news of you."

An English father, Harry Arthur Dade, longing for a letter from his 9-year-old son in faraway New Mexico, wrote those words recently. They have come into print through the medium of a book, "To His Refugee Son."

The sentence so well expresses the yearnings of so many people that it may well be remembered long after its origin has been forgotten.

To those who stay home as well as those who are far away, letters are sometimes more important than food. The soldiers and sailors like to get letters. They'll remember, we are sure, that the folks at home also wait with anxious hearts for "news of you."—Akron Beacon Journal.

No Immediate Chance of Revolt Against Hitler, Observers Report

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—After returning on the Drottingholm, Leland B. Morris, U. S. charge d'affaires in Berlin, and George Wadsworth, charge in Rome, gave the senate foreign relations committee some eye-opening slants on international conditions in the Axis countries, coupled with a blunt warning. The warning was:

"Don't depend on the peoples of Germany and Italy revolting against their masters."

There is only a long-shot chance of an Axis collapse through revolution, the two diplomats reported. The German and Italian people, they said, are under such severe military rule and surveillance, that it would be extremely difficult to plan, much less carry out, revolts at present.

Morris, who served in Berlin about 18 months, also poohpoohed rumors that the German people are not loyal to Hitler.

"They are weary of war," he said, "but they are still faithful to Hitler. Make no mistake about that. They may not consider him the idol they once did, but they are still behind him. Anyone who thinks otherwise is fooling himself."

Asked about German "morale," Morris replied that from the standpoint of loyalty to the Fuehrer, "it was good."

Wadsworth said the Italian people are kept in such subjugation and fear by the Germans that it was difficult to get a true expression of their feelings, though the morale of the Italians definitely was not as good as that of the Germans.

"Do you think there is any possibility of a revolt in Italy in the next year?" he was asked.

"I do not," Wadsworth replied.

Capital Chaff.

AFTER the battle of Midway, a high-ranking army officer who believes in air strength called up a press association and said: "Have you written your lead yet on the battle? If not, here it is: 'The Air Corps has done the job. Both Japanese and American fleets are in retreat'."....Inside dope is that neither American nor Japanese battleships got close enough to each other to fire a shot....Australian External Minister Evatt, busy flying between Syndney, London and Washington to beg planes for his government, nevertheless found time to write a book on the Australian labor movement.

Grand Time.

LITTLE news is permitted to leak out of Denmark. But every now and then a reliable report gets through that shows the spirit of the Danes, like that of their indomitable Norwegian cousins, remains unbroken.

Recently during the showing of a German newsreel in a Copenhagen theater, Hitler was flashed on the screen boarding a military plane. Immediately some one yelled, "Give our greetings to Hess."

A Gestapo agent present immediately ordered the lights turned on and an effort was made to discover the offender. It was unsuccessful. The Gestapo then announced that the performance was cancelled and that the audience could get back part of its money, with the rest to go to the Nazi relief fund.

Whereupon another voice shouted: "We don't want any of the money. We all had a grand time."

Lt. Col. Justice Murphy.

ONLY insiders at the war department know it, but Justice Frank Murphy offered to resign from the Supreme Court altogether if the army would definitely give him combat service abroad.

However, word came back, first, that the army could make no promises to where any officer would serve; second that he was too valuable on the Supreme Court.

So Murphy will go back to the bench when the summer recess is over. Most Supreme Court justices spend this four months on Cape Cod or in the mountains, but Murphy has chafed at these idle summer months.

The army, which has handed out a lot of lush commissions to Hollywood moguls, offered him a higher rank than lieutenant colonel, but he chose to be only one rank higher than when he left the last war as a major. As a result Murphy will be saluting men who were on his staff as governor of Michigan.

U. S. Specialist Corps.

THE Army Specialist Corps got off to a bad start with no money, no equipment and no clear-cut idea of what it was expected to do, but under the smooth direction of Dwight F. Davis the corps now is ready to start going places. A few days ago Roosevelt formally sent Davis's name to the senate for confirmation as director-general.

The corps is recruiting thousands of "specialists," that is, technicians, scientists, professional men and administrators — men too old to fight or with physical defects that disqualify them for army service, but who are able to fill the shoes of younger men needed on the firing lines.

Davis says the response of America's older citizens has been "magnificent." He estimates that 125,000 men have offered to serve in any capacity the army can use them. Already the corps has more than 10,000 jobs awaiting specialists—jobs now filled by young officers or enlisted men. That means, Davis pointed out, 10,000 more men to carry the fight to Hitler and the Japs.

Since it was something new in America's military organization, the Specialists Corps at first encountered resistance from a few hidebound army outfits. Several of the regular service branches refused to designate what jobs the older men might fill and one, finance, is still holding out.

But this opposition is disappearing as the corps proves it can deliver. Job openings now are coming in at the rate of several hundred a week.

The specialists wear khaki, and are subject to modified army discipline. They do not salute, but officers and men have the same rank and pay scales as the army.

Merry-Go-Round.

ONLY time the chief of staff of the U. S. army ever listened to a private for two hours without answering back was when Gen. Marshall attended Shaw's "Candida" starring Private Burgess Meredith. Meredith was given leave from the army because proceeds from the play go to army relief....Others who listened to Private Meredith were Harry Hopkins, accompanied by Charlie Chaplain's newly divorced wife, Paulette Goddard, and Mrs. Roosevelt accompanied by Melvin Douglas....The son of a J. P. Morgan partner approached the son of another J. P. Morgan partner the other day on behalf of the "Kommies." The emissary was Corliss Lamont, son of Thomas W. Lamont, who asked Jimmy Cromwell, step-son of Edward T. Stotesbury, to drop his libel suit against the New Masses. The left wing rag had called Cromwell an appeaser, though it once reprimanded him, when he was minister to Canada, for demanding that the U. S. A. join up with England.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—One of the laughs around town is a series of telegrams exchanged between Todd Duncan and his son, who is away at school. Duncan is the Porgy of "Porgy and Bess," and after the Gershwin operetta was broadcast recently Todd sat around expecting to hear a few words of praise from his son. Nothing happened. Duncan then wired his son, inquiring, "Did you hear Porgy and Bess broadcast?" . . . Four days later Duncan received a telegram from his son which said, "Yes," and nothing more. Duncan, meanwhile had forgotten all about his own telegram to the boy, so he wired back, "Yes what?" . . . And the son replied, "Yes, Sir."

THOUGH she is known on Broadway chiefly for her performance as the maid Hilda in "Junior Miss," and for her singing in nightclubs, Paula Laurence is a talented wire sculptress . . . She just takes pieces of wire and bends them into the shapes of people . . . Recently she gave an exhibition of her art, and among the figures represented were wire caricatures of Garbo, Charlie Chaplin, Moss Hart and Shirley Temple. There was also one of herself, and it was such a perfect likeness that she was awarded a blue ribbon. It was Chaplin who declared to his friends that Paula was "the funniest woman in the world." He followed this up by promising to use her in his next picture.

COME July 14, Grace Moore and Valentin Parera are going to celebrate their 11th wedding anniversary . . . They plan to celebrate it on their farm at Sandy Hook, Conn. . . . This farm is known to their friends as Faraway Meadows, and it is a well stocked piece of land.

It is this "stocked" part of the description that Miss Moore likes to dwell on. She has two horses, the gift of Amon Carter, the Ft. Worth publisher. She has two sheep, the gift of Lily Pons. She has two pigs, the gift of Lawrence Tibbett She has a fine blooded Rhode Island Red rooster, the gift of Jose Iturbi. All of which suggests this tip: If you are a friend of Miss Moore, or her husband, she would much prefer, as a wedding anniversary remembrance, something for her victory farm. She likes fruit trees and wheelbarrows, feeding troughs and goats. No boxes of candy, please, or tiaras. Or if it's fine furs you're thinking of, she hopes they'll have four feet, and be able to arrive under their own power.

THE new Bess, of "Porgy and Bess" turns out to be Etta Morten, who was George Gershwin's original choice for the role when the musical first opened on Broadway years ago. But at that time Etta was tied up to a South American contract and was not free to come to Broadway.

Beaten Path

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A NARROW, well worn, curving path led between the back door of a friend's bungalow and the rear of the stately big house next door. The lawn between was close-set bluegrass, very green and restful to the eyes. I remarked this fact to the woman of the bungalow, who stood on the rear terrace, with a broom rake in her hand, and a big sun hat shading her hair and eyes.

"But why that path between the two homes?" I wondered.

"I wouldn't know why it's so crooked," she rejoined, with a wide smile, "but that path is an institution. It's been there since we lived here, and long before. People have moved in and out of both houses but the path still stays.

"When we first moved here, I wasn't glad to come. It seemed we were too far out, away from everything. I didn't think I'd like it. The little old lady who lived next door came running across that path right after we'd moved in, and brought us strawberries from her garden. It was she who taught me how to can and preserve and how to make mixed pickle. Then, in wintertime, I'd go over and help her quilt, or fit a dress—for I'm handy with a needle. When they sold the place, and moved away, I cried and thought I'd never have such another neighbor.

"But the girl who moved into that big house was as lonely looking as I had been. I had a glimpse of her, one winter morning, sweeping off the walk and I ran over through the slush and took a coffee cake. She's the stately dignified sort and I almost was afraid, but dear me, I needn't have been! She knows more funny stories than anybody—and she's got the sweetest baby now, just six months old! I keep it for her sometimes. Next year I guess it'll be big enough to walk along the path itself.

"We trip back and forth between our kitchen doors, share our joys and our sorrows, our garden truck and even our rationed sugar. I've said to her more'n once there'd be fewer wars and lots less trouble in this world if there'd be more friendly paths between people's houses."

ASHLAND MODEL AIRPLANE SHOW AWARDS LISTED

Exhibit Continues Tonight and Tomorrow at Junior Association Rooms.

ASHLAND — The public is invited to the showing of nearly 100 model airplanes on display at the Junior Chamber of Commerce rooms which were entered in the Model Air Show sponsored by the Jaycees. The show will continue tonight and Wednesday night from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m.

Walter Bachmann, 17, member of next year's Ashland high senior class, won first prize for best in show with a flying model entered in the 24 inches and up class for grades 10-12. Eugene Garrison, received second best in show with a model plane in grades 10-12 and Jack Dunlap's flying model, 16-24 inches in grades 7-9 was third best in show.

Thirty prizes were awarded for planes in the show, all of which were built by the contestants. Prizes were offered in adult classes but none were entered. However a display of models made by "plane hobby builders" have been arranged in the display but were not entered in the competition.

GIVES LECTURE

ASHLAND—Of interest to the public in these times of war tension is the lecture which will be given by Dr. Oscar B. Markey, children's psychologist from Cleveland, in the Ashland college chapel Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. Dr. Markey will speak on "Community Mental Hygene Programs."

An associate professor of mental hygiene of the school of applied social sciences, the school of education and the Frances Payne Bolton school of nursing of Western Reserve university, Dr. Markey is well known throughout the state as an outstanding authority in the field of mental hygiene.

He is also associate psychiatrist of Mount Sinai hospital in Cleveland and psychiatrist to the Cleveland Day Nursery association. He is a trustee of the Child Health association, Camp Wise association, Jewish Social Service bureau and Park School in Cleveland.

ASHLANDER LEARNS OF SAFETY OF BROTHER, LEXINGTON SEAMAN

ASHLAND — Mrs. G. E. Kirkpatrick of this city received a telephone call yesterday from her brother, Walter F. Duncan, of the U. S. S. Lexington plane carrier sunk May 8 in the battle of the Coral Sea, saying that he had been granted a ten-day furlough starting today. Duncan, 23, a seaman first class enlisted in the Navy in March 1941 and had been aboard the Lexington for the past ten months.

He was stationed with the Lexington at Pearl Harbor at the time of attack and Mrs. Kirkpatrick had her last letter from him during the first week of April in which he had said they were "going out." She said she anxiously watched the dispatches from the battles of Midway Island and the Coral Sea and on June 6 received a night letter from him from San Diego in which he said there had been an "accident" and he had safely arrived at San Diego.

In his telephone call yesterday he said that he had been picked up by a destroyer and brought to San Diego. His message further intimated he and other seamen had to jump overboard as the Lexington was sinking for he said that he "got his feet wet."

Furthermore he told her he was "broke." Pay accounts were lost when the plane carrier was sunk and consequently the men have not been paid for two months.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick immediately wired him money to come to Ashland which she hopes he may be able to do although his furlough for such a trip is very short.

Duncan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Duncan of near Lucas and a brother of Mrs. Frank Martin, who also resides near Lucas.

CUSTODIAN FOR 28 YEARS QUITS POST IN GALION

School Employe Resigns Due To Ill Health; Teachers Named by Board.

GALION — M. R. McCammon, custodian of Galion schools for the past twenty-eight years, offered his resignation to the board of education Monday night, following several months of poor health. The board met in special session to consider the problems of several teaching vacancies to be filled.

Two vocational positions were filled with the employment of Mary Catherine Welch of Granville, as vocational commercial instructor, and M. J. McGuirk, of Indianapolis, as vocational machine shop instructor.

Miss Welch will fill the position left vacant by the resignation of M. L. Miltenberger. She is a graduate of Ohio State university and has been teaching for the past three years at Bellevue high school. She has also had six years of business experience. Hired at a salary of $1,700, Miss Welch will come under the supervision of the Smith-Hughes system of the state which pays half the yearly salary.

The machine shop position which was recently declared vacant when Earl Sommers accepted a position with the Perfect Circle Piston Ring company, was filled by the appointment of M. J. McGuirk, who has taught for the past two years at the Arsenal Technical high school in Indianapolis. A graduate of Indiana State Teachers' college, McGuirk has been teaching for the past twelve years.

Two other resignations were also accepted. that of Betty Zane Miller Berroset, former art teacher who was recently married, and that of Robert Payne, athletic coach, hired May 5.

MARJORIE MAE BENDER WEDS MELVIN M'KENNA

Double Ring Ceremony Performed Friday at St. John's Lutheran Church In McZena By Rev. Krumm.

IN A QUIET ceremony Friday evening before the altar of the St. John's Lutheran church of McZena, Miss Marjorie Mae Bender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bender of Hayesville, became the bride of Melvin Wayne McKenna. Rev. C. E. Krumm performed the double ring ceremony.

Nuptial music was played by Miss Barbara Shilliday. The altar was decorated with roses and peonies. For the service, the bride was attired in a powder blue romaine crepe dress with white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of pink rose buds. Her only jewelry was a three strand necklace of pearls, gift from the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McKenna of Bellville.

Miss Mary Jane Snider, a close friend of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a beige crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations and roses. Leslie Etzwiler was the best man. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bender chose a navy blue redingote dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a black and white silk dress. Her accessories were white with a corsage of red roses. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the immediate families and close relatives. Afterwards, the couple left for a week-end trip.

Mrs. McKenna graduated from Hayesville high school and attended Wooster business college. She is now employed by the Humphryes Manufacturing company. Mr. McKenna attended Johnsville high school and is employed at the Isaly Dairy company. The couple is residing at 244 Hedges street.

New Members Welcomed By Navy Mothers

Four new members were welcomed at last night's meeting of the Navy Mothers club at the Central Methodist church. They were the Mises Julia Harrington, Eva Gundrum, and Dorothy Gundrum, and Mrs. Mary Heifner, all of Shelby. Eighteen were in attendance. Business session was conducted by Mrs. Florence Blunk.

A letter from Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., thanking the club for a convalescence card sent to him when he was ill was read by Mrs. Mary Smith. Raymond Spicer of the U. S. Navy, who is home on furlough, spoke briefly. He is the son of Mrs. Helen Kennedy. Plans were made to have a combined meeting and family picnic at noon on Sunday, June 28, at Mrs. Katherine Sattler's cottage on Mifflin lake.

Fund Given For Choir Expenses

More than 50 persons attended the picnic supper last evening at North Lake park of the Senior high school Choir Parents' club. During the business session $25 was given to the choir director, A. LeMoine Derr, to be used for choir expenditures.

Beginning next fall the club will be open to all those interested in helping the choir, whether they have children in it or not. Dues will also be charged. Plans were made for the parents to continue meeting throughout the summer in order to begin the new school term with a good start.

Bingo was played the remaining part of the evening. July 13 a wiener roast will be held at 6 p. m. in Middle park for the families and guests of the club.

Author Tells Widower to Marry Again

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is it an act of disloyalty to a deceased wife if a man marries again?

I wish all the problems that are submitted to me by tender consciences and aching hearts were simple as this one is. From my own viewpoint, there is only one answer. The following letter, recently received from a troubled young man, illustrates the question:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My wife and I were the happiest couple on earth. There never was a shadow between us and we were the best of pals until the day she died. I vowed I would be ever faithful to her memory, and didn't dream I could look at another woman.

"We had two small children, and I have tried to take the place of both mother and father, with the help of my mother who watches over them during the day.

"And now, three years later, I'm in love again with a girl who seems in every way as fine as my deceased wife. What do you think about it? Do you think that I have any responsibility toward this girl, who is in love with me also, but to whom I have never spoken a word of love?

"And what about the children, who are now ten and twelve years old? Will they hold it against me for marrying a second time? Whatever you may think of me for admitting it, Miss Fairfax, I am devotedly in love for the second time in my life.

"Troubled."

Let me say at once that this young man has my enthusiastic advice to marry again.

A man who wants to remarry is paying a compliment to his first wife. A man who cannot do without love and a woman's presence and a woman-made home is the man whose marriage has been a successful and happy one.

This young man may have a long life ahead of him. I cannot believe that the girl who died would expect him to remain single for years for her sake. Anyone who did expect such a thing would be super-sentimental and ignorant. On the contrary, his wife would probably wish him to be happy, and happy through a woman's love.

To look at it from a sensible point of view, a man who is in love with a fine girl, whom he is free to marry, ought to do so without reference to whether he has been married before or not. Probably the new young lady is wondering why he has not told her of his love. My own feeling is that, both for her sake and his own, he ought to lose no time in clearing the matter up.

Love has its imperative claims whether it be first love or second love. As for his children, has it never occurred to him that they need another mother, and that supplying them with one is the most reasonable and fatherly thing he could do?

"Eternal faithfulness," in the sense in which this widower meant it, is not a very practical thing.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I looked at Lillian, waiting for her answer, and she spoke with quick decision.

"Of course," she told my father. "I can come right over. And you, Madge?"

"Right with you," I said. Then we all went down the hall to the room where Lillian's wounded husband lay.

Curiously enough, as I entered the room I had the impression that something of great moment had just been decided there. The very air seemed filled with information that clamored to reach me. While I knew we would be told only what my father was willing we should know, I believed he would tell us promptly all that his secretive temperament would permit him to reveal.

Dicky's half ribald comment of long ago came back to me as vividly as if I had just heard it.

"Dad holds on a piece of information until it gets moth-eaten," Dicky had said, when my father had been particularly secretive about some problem in which he had asked for the help we were trying to give him.

We found Harry lying back in his bed, and I guessed that Dr. Twitchell's permission already had been stretched beyond bounds. Miss Whitlock was bending over him, and as she turned and saw all three of us filing into the room, her eyebrows contracted into an involuntary frown. But Lillian forestalled the nurse's protest.

"Oh, is it all right for him to talk?" she asked. "Is he strong enough? If not, we'll go right back."

It was my father's turn to frown now, and the nurse, looking at him, spoke with firm emphasis, answering his look rather than Lillian's questions.

"I will give you ten minutes," she said. "Sitting up doesn't seem to have hurt him, but I don't wish to have his reserve strength exhausted, as it will be if he attempts too much."

"We probably will not keep him ten minutes," my father said.

"Then if you will excuse me," the nurse said, "I will go outside again. If you need me, I shall be sitting in that recess across the hall."

I admired this adroit way of telling Lillian and me that she had not been present at the interview between Harry and Chief, and that now she was going far enough away to ensure her not being able to hear a word of our talk.

"Thank you," my father said gravely, bowing in his stately fashion, as she went out of the room. Then with the same grave courtesy, he placed chairs for Lillian and me and gestured to Harry.

"Tell her!" he said.

The big man looked at his wife with tender and intent eyes.

"The Chief has made me see," he began, "that I can be of more use to him, for the present, by staying with him, than I could if I went back—you know where—to hunt for clues to Marion's whereabouts."

Lillian Grateful.

I noticed that he stressed the words "for the present," but saw that Lillian heard only the high spot of his news. Her quickly drawn breath and the grateful look she threw at my father were as impassioned as her tumbling words.

"Oh, Harry!" she gasped, stretching her arms out to him. Then she turned pleading eyes on my father.

"Please, Chief, may I kiss him?" she asked.

My father's frown vanished as he gave her an indulgent smile.

"If you don't take too long over it," he said, and added, after an appreciable pause, "we still have to see whether you are going to be as tractable as Harry has been."

When City Boys Work On Farms

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

With the desperate need of help on farms, many high school boys and girls have been urged to register for jobs during the summer. This has a noble purpose but its realization will bring numerous problems.

No doubt the city high school girl will find more ways to be efficient in the farm home than will the boy in the barn and fields. While all too few town and city girls have learned to share in the chores of the home, the kind of things a girl may do in a farm family will hardly be so different from her home experience.

Without wise and patient guidance of someone who understands, not many town and city boys will prove useful workers on the farm. Going to the farm to work, the urban lad will soon discover that things there are not what he had imagined them. He probably had pictured himself driving a team or running a tractor. To only a few of the boys, and then for short periods, will such experiences come. A great deal of farm work the lad will be set to do will be drudgery. After a few hours of it the romance will have vanished. It will be milking cows, cleaning stables, pulling weeds, spraying vegetables, or picking up potatoes and the like.

Very few city boys have practiced at such monotonous tasks. Few even have assumed responsibility at home for such regular jobs as carrying ashes from the basement, raking leaves or mowing lawns. How well the city lad will do when employed on the farm will depend pretty largely on how well he has learned to bear responsibilities in his home. Parents observing their son at work on the farm might easily discern their successes or failures in bringing him up.

A big barrier to success in this city-lad-on-the-farm enterprise is the traditional attitude of the farm folk toward the city folk and vice versa. Each tends to belittle the other. The farmer and his family are inclined to laugh at the awkwardness of the city lad about the farm and the city lad is prone to look down on the skills, achievements and mode of life of the farm folk. When the city youth becomes an employee on the farm he, of course, is at a big disadvantage. This very fact may render him less ready to learn farm skills and farm ways.

Those who register town and city boys for farm work might try to provide them with supervision, especially for the first few weeks, letting them know the true nature of farm work with its drudgery, long hours and small pay. Parents of the urban boy or girl going to the farm to work would like to know about the nature and character of the farm family and the farmer should know about the youth to be employed.

Youths who prove that they can work hard, stick to the job and become efficient workers should derive a great deal in health and character and the satisfaction of having rendered a patriotic service.

Q. Do you have some extra material on thumb sucking?

A. Yes; and you may have it without cost by writing me at 235 E. 45th St., New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GIVING AND TAKING

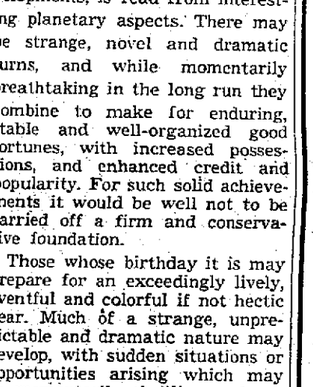
Since marriage is supposed to be in some respects a matter of give-and-take, to produce the theoretically ideal 50-50 about which we hear so much, it is probably appropriate for a writer to release on his thirtieth wedding anniversary an anecdote which features the give-and-take idea. Deals on which either side can make a game are not especially infrequent, but it is rather edifying to see one on which both sides made game at the identically same contract, plus one or more extra tricks.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

| | West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1. | Pass | Pass | 1 ♣ | 1 ♥ |
| | Pass | 1 NT | Dble | 2 ♦ |
| | Pass | 2 NT | Pass | 3 NT |
| 2. | Pass | Pass | 1 ♣ | 1 ♥ |
| | Pass | Pass | 2 NT | Pass |
| | 3 ♠ | Pass | 3 NT | |

There is no claim to that being fine bidding, at either table. At the first, North was desperately trying to gain some impossibly high scores, to catch up in the duplicate game in which his pair had scored none too well. Against him, East led the club K and A, next the J to the Q. Followed six tricks in diamonds, a finesse of the heart Q, the heart A and the heart J, producing an extra trick.

At the other table, South led the spade 9, imagining his partner to hold something over West's bid. So East promptly ran six tricks in spades and six in clubs, after winning that finesse, giving him 12 tricks all told and three over his contract.

Tomorrow's Lesson.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

After West leads the heart Q, how should South plan his play of this deal to make 6-Clubs?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, June 17

AN EXCEPTIONALLY eventful and progressive day, with many surprises and sudden developments, is read from interesting planetary aspects. There may be strange, novel and dramatic turns, and while momentarily breathtaking in the long run they combine to make for enduring, stable and well-organized good fortunes, with increased possessions, and enhanced credit and popularity. For such solid achievements it would be well not to be carried off a firm and conservative foundation.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for an exceedingly lively, eventful and colorful if not hectic year. Much of a strange, unpredictable and dramatic nature may develop, with sudden situations or opportunities arising which may be momentarily thrilling and enticing yet in the long run make for enduring and solid success and good fortune. The danger is in being carried to extremes of excitement, extravagance or cupidity.

A child born on this day should have much initiative, courage, audacity and ingenuity, which should bring surprising success, but a proclivity to take long chances.

Nourishing Menu Easy On Budget

By BETSY NEWMAN

What's the latest on the spice situation? We cooks want to know. There is enough spice—nutmeg, mace, cinnamon and cloves—to last a year or more, we are assured. These spices are brought to the United States and ground as stocks are needed. Cloves are the most plentiful, cinnamon not quite so much so, so use your cinnamon sparingly.

Today I'm giving you a nourishing menu that won't overtax your budget.

Today's Menu.

Beef Pot Roast Asparagus
Boiled Potatoes
Radishes and Green Onions
Lemon Rennet Bavarian
Coffee or Tea

Beef Pot Roast.

3-lb. beef pot roast
½ cup boling water
1 teaspoon salt
1 onion
4 peppercorns
4 whole cloves
2 bay leaves
Suet or drippings

Wipe meat, brown on all sides in melted suet or meat drippings, brown onion lightly, stick cloves into meat, add other seasonings and boiling water, and simmer very gently over low heat until meat is very tender, about three hours. Remove meat to hot platter, pour off all but 2 tablespoons of fat, mix with 2 tablespoons flour, stir smooth, and gradually add hot water. Return to fire, stir until smooth and thick, season to suit taste, strain and serve with meat in separate dish.

Lemon Rennet Bavarian.

1 package lemon rennet
1 pint milk
¼ cup sugar
4 strawberries
½ cup whipping cream

Prepare lemon rennet according to direction on package, set away to chill. Whip cream, and just before it is stiff, add sugar. When just ready to serve, top with whipped cream and put 1 strawberry in the center of cream in each of four servings.

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT M'KENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

Speaking of second fronts—the appearance of an American bombing squadron in the white-hot southern Russo-German theater (as disclosed through the forced landing of four of our warplanes in Turkey) is a potent reminder that Anglo-American forces are based in the Middle East ready to help the Russians.

Now that's of vast importance because, as I've pointed out more than once, this area which takes in Syria, Iraq and Iran is one of the vital strategic zones of the entire war. One can say that the side which controls the Middle East has a mighty good grip on ultimate victory.

Not only is this territory of military value, but it possesses great resources

London thinks the United States has opened up a new air front in the eastern Mediterranean. Maybe so, and maybe not. However, it's obvious that Yankee bombers went into battle to assist the Russians.

Certainly if Hitler should break into the Caucasus, which provides the Russian land-bridge between the Black and Caspian seas into the Middle East, there is little doubt that the Anglo-American forces would come into immediate action, thereby opening up a new front.

One highly important aspect of the Middle Eastern situation is that this territory lies up against Turkish borders, and the Allies thus are standing at Turkey's back like big brothers, encouraging her to remain firm in her effort to avoid giving aid to the Germans. The Turks are in a delicate position.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

I WONDER if anyone could describe this Broadway June, 1942, to a Broadwayite who had not been home since war started?

I wonder if any description with words could convey what has been accomplished by the dimout—the strange bulky grandeur of buildings that never existed before except as walls upon which the great electric signs were hung; the shuttered windows from which no light, but much music, comes; the almost intangible muffling of the voices of the crowd.

Kilgallen

Anyone can imagine total darkness, but this peculiar spotty dimness is a thing you have to walk through and see: the blue and red bulbs on the undersides of the marquees spilling patches of glow along the sidewalk; white caps of sailors bobbing through the dark of the throng like vanilla cupcakes; khaki going by and gold braid going by and bright summer skirts getting into taxis and white shoes stepping off the curbs into the thin traffic, and overhead a sudden sharpness in the stars you never noticed before because they had too much competition.

Now and then a burst of bandsong from a dance hall overhead or a phonograph record playing in the doorway of a music shop. Now and then a face you know. But mostly just a lot of people walking along together on a street that used to be bright.

I consider Greer Garson one of the most enchanting actresses on the screen, but I am inclined to worry about the parts she gets. Since "Goodbye Mr. Chips" in which she met an untimely end, all her roles (with, I believe, only the exception of "Pride and Prejudice") have been on the sorrowful and suffering side. "Blossoms in the Dust" was one example of eight-reel tribulation, and the magnificent "Mrs. Miniver" is another.

Greer was fine in all of them, but I keep fearing that she will become the Ann Harding of the 40's. Some years ago, you may recall, Miss Harding enjoyed a ladies' sewing-circle vogue during which she played every chin-up-smile-while-they-torture-you role her studios could unearth for her, and believe me they unearthed plenty. The result was she wept herself out of the public taste—particularly the portion of the public containing me.

I doubt if this will happen to Miss Garson, for one thing because in real life she is an exceedingly humorous and delightfully gay person, but I don't even like to see her standing on the brink of that Crybaby Abyss.

I never believed the Broadway legend about the mounted cop's horse in the Forties who refuses lump sugar unless it's properly wrapped—but I saw him with my own eyes the other night. . . . I am afraid I don't share our Mayor's enthusiasm for parades, particularly in wartime, when I cannot help but feel that if all the time, money, materials and man power wasted in one day of parading were harnessed for the making or buying of something permanent, the nation would be better served. . . . Saw Fanny Ward at Fefe's the other evening and am I getting near-sighted or is she looking younger?

* * *

I like the spirit of the stunt United Artists is doing for the premiere of "Friendly Enemies" at the Rivoli next week. The guests on the opening night will be gobs, marines and soldiers of the lowest rank, plus the working rank and file of the AWVS. Nobody even as high as a corporal, let alone the customary gold braid brigade — will be allowed in. . . . What's happened? All the taxi drivers seem so polite so suddenly. . . . George Jean Nathan's seasonal awards in this month's Esquire will make you chuckle. . . . I suppose we will have to listen to those gags about WAAC's (pronounced "wacks" by the wits) for the duration.

* * *

I always feel terribly frustrated when a new novel comes out that is allegedly a ruthless dissection of some real life character whose acquaintance I have never made. This time it is Mary McCarthy's "The Company She Keeps" that is supposed to rip apart a leading member of the literary set—but utterly, my dear—and here I am not knowing the fellow from Adam. I am not sure anybody else does either, because I have heard "insiders" describe this fictional personality ascribed to everybody from the editor of a liberal weekly to an obscure but brilliant writer of cosmetics advertisements. I much prefer books with 17th century heroes whom I couldn't possibly be expected to know personally.

SCHOOL BOARD EMPLOYS FIVE NEW TEACHERS

35 Clerks, Special Employes Also Hired at Session; 2 Granted Leaves.

Five new teachers were employed last night by the Mansfield board of education which granted two men instructors leaves-of-absence and employed 35 clerks, special employes and cafeteria staff members.

Hired to fill vacancies in the city schools' teaching staff were Miss Gertrude Smith, Mansfield; Miss Margaret Jackson, Bellville; Miss Myrtle Leeper, Miamisburg; Guy Van Nostrand, Mt. Vernon, and Kenneth Lea, Ashley.

Van Nostrand is a junior high athletic coach and Lea will teach industrial arts at Senior high school. Miss Leeper will teach in the deaf school. The other teachers were not assigned.

Raymond Dent, teacher at the Bowman school, and George Tuttle, John Simpson junior high instructor, were granted leaves for the duration of the war. Dent has been appointed an aviation cadet in the Army Air corps and Tuttle expects to be inducted into the army soon.

Nine secretarial workers in the superintendent's and principals' offices were re-appointed. They are:

Miss Anne Arron, secretary to Supt. W. L. Miller; Miss Helen Goard, assistant secretary to the superintendent; Miss Mary Holmes, secretary in the superintendent's office; Miss Gerry Hartman, secretary to Purchasing Agent J. B. Moke; Miss Emily Brown and Mrs. Phyllis U. Friday, clerks at Senior high school; Miss Patricia Oberlander, clerk at John Simpson junior high school; Miss Winifred Palmer, clerk at Johnny Appleseed high school, and Miss Eleanor Piper, clerk at the Bowman school.

Mrs. Robert E. Rogers was reappointed school nurse, Miss Florance Gillespie as physiotherapist at the Sunshine school, Miss Mary Jane McCormick as reader for the Sight-saving class; Mrs. Deborah Wood, cook for the deaf school, and Mrs. Cleo Buchter, cook for the Sunshine school.

Appointed to the school cafeteria staffs were: Mrs. Frances B. Hypes, mangaer of the senior high and junior high school cafeterias; Jennie Berry, Bertha Motson, Josephine Beer, William Bortscheller, Ula P. Karl, Josephine Huff, Bertha Grandon, Pauline Hauserman, Vivian Mosey, Virginia Leach, Margaret Sisco, Leora Bender, Marguerite Rudolf, Mary Short, Mabel Garinger, Esther Hunter, Goldie Schwarz, Hazel Brannon, Alice Bright, and William Shurance.

OPENS OFFICE

County Civilian Defense Sets Up Courthouse Quarters.

Richland county's civilian defense organization opened an office today in a first-floor room at the courthouse in order to handle inquiries of county residents and expedite the work of the organization in general.

The office, located in the northeast corner of the building, off the Franklin avenue entrance, will be open only in the mornings for the present, according to Ray Hout, county chairman of civilian defense.

Mrs. Edith Metcalf will be in charge of the office as a volunteer worker. The office is the first of two civilian defense offices to be opened in Mansfield. The other, in the Municipal building is scheduled to be open later this week.

BEES SHARING HIS BEDROOM

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Tom Paisley, a 15-year-old high school sophomore of suburban Shaker Heights, keeps thousands of bees in his bed-room.

The bees, in fact, have their own private entrance to the bedroom.

Through a hole in the bedroom window frame the bees enter a small passageway that leads to their glass-enclosed hive.

Young Paisley became interested in bee study several years ago, and took a correspondence course in bee culture, which is conducted by Ohio State University. He has eight hives on his family's farm in Mentor, O., but maintains his bedroom apiary as well.

TOO MANY CLUBS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska—(U.P.)—Too much liquor, too many night clubs and too few healthful recreation facilities for the youth of the community was cited by Joseph Fisher, representative of the Federal Planning council, as being responsible for much of the delinquency credited to Anchorage.

Fisher, during a visit here recently, told members of the city council that lack of a large recreation center was reacting to the detriment of the city's younger set.

WORKS ON 1943 SCHOOL BUDGET

Committee Re-appointed To Set Up Finance Schedule; Library Fund OK'd.

H. W. Arlin, president of the Mansfield board of education, last night re-appointed the board's budget committee and asked the members to begin working on the schools' 1943 budget request.

The committee members are Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller, Board Clerk John H. Eisaman, J. B. Moke, purchasing agent, and Harold Bruce, vice president of the board.

Eisaman was authorized to advertise a public hearing on the budget before the board's next meeting, July 20.

The board approved a request from the Mansfield Public library for an appropriation of $35,600 for operation of the library next year. The amount represents an increase of about $500 over the 1942 budget figures.

The board allowed J. M. Holcombe, Senior high school band instructor, an additional $150 for the school year as compensation for his work with the band during the summer. He will give lessons in instrumental music and conduct outdoor concerts. It is the custom of the board to grant him that amount for his summer work.

FBI Arrests 22 Italian Aliens, Seizes Weapons

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Capture of 22 enemy aliens in seven Ohio cities was disclosed today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation which revealed a quantity of arms and ammunition was confiscated in the simultaneous raids.

Jesse C. Parks, acting agent in charge of the Cleveland FBI office, said the haul of aliens, all Italians, was the largest single round-up in this area since the war began.

Along with the 22 men picked up in Lorain, Cleveland, Alliance, Akron, Youngstown, Canton and East Canton, were two 12-gauge shotguns, three rifles, a revolver, blackjack, four cameras, a short-wave radio, two military uniforms, more than 500 rifle shells and almost 300 shotgun shells.

Also seized were a small plaque of Mussolini and a banner.

The men, whose capture brought the total number seized here to 91, were being held for hearings before the Alien Enemy Hearing board. Of the 91, 46 were German, 40 Italian, and five Japanese.

GOES TO PARLEY

Richland Home Demonstration Agent to Speak at Meeting.

Miss Elizabeth Bay, Richland county home demonstration agent, was at Sulphur Springs, Crawford county, today to participate in a district home council meeting for women in five counties.

Miss Bay was to lead a discussion of "Problems of Youth In the Present Emergency." Rural women leaders from Richland, Crawford, Marion, Wyandot, and Seneca counties attended the all-day conference.

CALIFORNIA COUPLE NAMED IN $100,000 SUIT FOR SEDUCTION

(By International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO — A young San Mateo, Cal., couple were named defendants today in a $100,000 seduction suit brought by the wife's 18-year-old sister, who charged they compelled her to bear a child by her brother-in-law so he could claim draft deferment through dependency.

Plaintiff in the amazing suit is attractive Cornelia Van Ree, now in a San Francisco hospital with her four-day-old daughter, her second child. She brought action in San Francisco superior court through her mother, Mrs. Mabel Olson of Monterey.

Named as defendants in the suit are Miss Van Ree's sister, Mrs. Alberta Turner, 25, and the latter's husband, G. E. Turner, 27-year-old pattern maker.

Told of the action filed against them, the couple vigorously denied the charges.

"Lies, all lies," they said. "We have done all we could to save Cornelia from disgrace. And this is her repayment."

"Why sue me for $100,000?" Turner asked. "I haven't got that kind of money. And why bring those charges against me? I can't figure it out, except that my mother-in-law never was crazy about me."

Turner added that he has no desire to evade the draft.

"The story doesn't make sense, anyway," he said. "My wife is expecting a child right now."

Miss Van Ree's suit charged that the strange conspiracy of which she allegedly was the victim started two years ago, when she was 16, after she had been invited to leave her mother's home in Monterey and make her home with the Turners.

A few months ago, Mrs. Olson went to San Mateo to visit her two daughters and was told by the younger girl what allegedly had taken place. The suit was the result.

PUPILS PICNIC

Hundreds Attend Outing of St. Peter's School.

St. Peter's 830 grade and high school pupils and several hundred parents participated in the annual school picnic Monday at South park.

A full program of events, including competitive games and races, featured the outing.

All pupils were presented with tickets entitling them to bus rides, concessions and refreshments. The Knights of Columbus aided in sponsoring the affair by soliciting prizes.

St. Rita's soladity served both noon and evening meals to the sisters of the school, Msgr. R. C. Goebel and assisting priests. The 10 teachers left today for their annual retreat to the Mother House at Joliet, Ill. Sister Laura, principal, will return here later this week but the other teachers will be gone for the remainder of the summer.

PICNIC FRIDAY

Formen's Club to Hold Annual Outing at Lake.

Members of the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club will hold their annual picnic Friday afternoon and evening at Greter's lake west of Mansfield.

The outing will get under way at 4 p. m. Members planning to attend have been asked to make their reservations with John Springer, Ohio Brass company, by noon Wednesday.

Laff-a-Day

The days when the so-called weaker sex carried tiny pistols in their muffs are recalled by the exhibition of firearms from the collection of Guy E. Shawk, 208 South Foster street, now on display at the Mansfield Public Library. The Marlin muff pistol, a vest pocket edition, is the smallest pistol on display while the largest is a Colt Dragoon of the type made for Sam Houston and his Texas Rangers. Another firearm made by Eli Whitney is also in the collection. Whitney, according to Shaw, was the first man, or one of the first, to make interchangeable parts for a revolver.

Traffic Patrolman Arthur Conrady is still looking for his raincoat which he lost last week while riding his motorcycle on duty. It seems that the police fasten raincoats on their cycles with rubber bands and that the fasteners used by Conrody wore out while he was dashing along Park avenue west, chasing a speeder. Conrady knew nothing about his loss until he went off duty. The patrolman would appreciate it if the finder returns the coat to police headquarters.

Mansfield police are wondering whether some Mansfield boys are not "capitalizing" on the patriotic generosity of some residents. There's just the slightest suspicion that some of the rubber left at the door of service stations closed for the night is being picked up by the youngsters and "sold" the next day at a penny a pound. The idea, according to police is to get money for the theater or a soda. Police said that any person caught stealing rubber contributions would be prosecuted.

FIRES HALF OF POLICE FORCE

Columbus Mayor Also Lays Off Firemen to Meet Financial Crisis.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—In the midst of a municipal financial crisis, Mayor Floyd F. Green today laid off half of the Ohio capital's police and firemen and reduced personnel in other departments.

He rejected pleas of business and civic leaders to withhold an order dropping 178 policemen and 190 firemen, and denied charges of administrative extravagance.

More money must be raised, Green said, before full service of all departments could be restored. Voters in this city of 304,000 population rejected by a 4-to-1 margin last week a 2.5 mill levy which supporters said would raise $900,000 to meet an anticipated 1942 shortage.

"I want it thoroughly understood," Green told critics who packed the council chamber last night, "that there has been no waste, no extravagance with the thought of building up a political machine. We can render only the type of service that the public is willing to pay for."

Jerry Spears, member of a special civic committee, told the mayor that "there is a feeling on the part of the public that there is a bit of horseplay," that there are operating funds still available.

State laws permitting municipal refinancing have lapsed and Green said, "we are right up against a stone wall."

'FED UP' WITH TIPSTERS ON REGISTRANTS

Selective Service Groups Cite Men Who Fail to Advise of Changes.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — State selective service officials reported today that many local draft boards, "fed up with registrants who conveniently forget to notify their boards of changes in their status," are planning to invoke federal law to keep an accurate check on men registered under selective service.

"The majority of Ohio's 330 local boards have reached the point where they are fed up with anonymous tipsters and with registrants who refuse to notify their boards of any change in their work, dependency or physical condition," Col. C. W. Goble, state draft director, said.

He said that "unless conditions are remedied immediately," these boards plan to prepare such cases for submission to federal grand juries.

"Many local boards do not conceal the fact from state headquarters that a list of registrants is being quietly compiled of those who have failed to notify them of changes in their marital status, changes in their jobs or the degree of dependency," Goble said.

The selective service act provides a $10,000 fine and a maximum prison sentence of five years for failure to do so.

"In addition, the act specifies that precedence be given by the courts to the trial of cases arising under the selective service act," he said.

State draft officials said that all local boards had been notified that the state's fifth registration—for youths 18 to 20 years old—would be held June 27 and June 30.

The registration, which will be conducted by volunteer registrars under the supervision of local board chairmen at draft board offices, will affect all males born on or after June 1, 1922 and on or before June 30, 1924.

Under the selective service law, 18, and 19-year-old youths are not liable for military service. The minimum age for compulsory military duty is 20.

Hours of the registration will be from 12 noon until 6 p. m. on Saturday, June 27, and from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Tuesday, June 30.

WIDOW, 85, DIES

Mrs. Arabelle Wallace Succumbs After Long Illness.

Mrs. Arabelle Wallace, 85, widow of the late William Wallace, died early today at the Knofflock rest home after a long illness. She was a resident of Madison township, living on Olivesburg road.

Mrs. Wallace was born in Ashland county Oct. 4, 1856 but lived in and near Madison township the greater part of her life. She was a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Survivors are a brother, John Kindle of Ashland, and several nieces and nephews. Mrs. Wallace's sister, Miss Susie Kindle of Ashland, died on May 30.

The body has been removed to the Jones Memorial home where funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. with Rev. Albert L. Linder officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

REGISTER LOFTS

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(U.P.)— Registration of all pigeon lofts in San Diego city and county under supervision of police and sheriff's offices is nearly complete.

Sheriff Bert Strand said registration of pigeon lofts was a defense measure to insure a large supply of homing pigeons for communication purposes in case the war should actually come to the Pacific Coast.

SHE RELAXES

MEDFIELD, Mass.—(U.P.)—For relaxation, Mrs. Robert Homans, director of the women's division of the Massachusetts Public Safety committee, saws wood.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Johnny Appleseed junior high school got itself a football coach last night when the Mansfield board of education hired Guy Van Nostrand.

The new Appleseed mentor is still rated as the best little man ever to play in a Mt. Vernon high school line. He played a guard back there in 1930 when Angus King turned out his best Yellow Jacket team, a double wingback, double and triple reverse outfit that depended a lot on the interference a watch-charm guard named Guy Van Nostrand provided.

When that little fellow, 135 pounds at the time, was out in front of the runners, the runners went places. Touchdowns from 35 yards out were the order of the day. Freddy Yeager, who later starred at the University of Cincinnati, George Smith, who did the same at Ohio U., Bob Bricker and Ed Weirick carried the ball and got the headlines, but when it came to picking an all-Central Ohio league team, Guy Van Nostrand was a unanimous choice of the league coaches.

That was a really great team that year. Mt. Vernon's big rival was, is, and always has been Coshocton. And Coshocton had a good team, defending a league title won for two straight years

Both teams were undefeated when Coshocton came to town giving odds against the Jackets Score: Mt. Vernon 40, Coshocton 0.

Sky Wharton, old Ashland star, coaching Coshocton, pulled a tackle out of the lineup in the third quarter. "I can't tell where the ball's going," complained the tackle. "That's nothing," said Sky, "I'm sitting here on the bench and watching the whole works, and I don't know where the ball's going either."

Sky and the bewildered tackle could have saved themselves a lot of worry by watching Guy Van Nostrand. Where he went, the ball was sure to follow.

But I don't blame them much for being bewildered. The best bunch of ball handlers and hiders I've ever seen was that Mt. Vernon team of 1930. Many's the time I wrote on my notes, "Bricker five yards off right tackle," and then crossed it out to write "Weirick 35 yards around right end for a touchdown."

So well did they hide the ball, half of the opposing team would be bunched up where Bricker, without the pigskin, was tackled, and the other half would be standing around looking at the fleet-footed Weirick crossing the goal line, with Van Nostrand right in front of him.

Van went to Ohio State where he starred on the freshman team, but where Sam Willaman and Francis Schmidt told him he was too small for Big Ten football

So, while attending Ohio State, Van Nostrand coached the freshman team at Columbus North high for two years And nearly his entire line played three years of football for North.

Coach Mike Hagely of North told Coach Paul Snyder of the Mansfield Tygers. "I wanted to keen Van on the coaching staff, but at the time we couldn't arrange it."

Snyder tried to get him as an assistant coach when he was at Mt. Vernon, and when the coaching job opened up at Appleseed, he lost no time in recommending Van for the post.

Providents Lose Game At Chicago

Mansfield Provident Loan girls returned home last night from their softball trip to Chicago where they dropped a 6-3 decision to the Garden City club Sunday.

* * *

Fran Knapp let the Chicagoans down with two hits, but errors gave them three runs in the first inning, and helped with the other three.

* * *

Saturday's game with the same club was rained out. The Providents are booked back in Chicago for a game in August. Tonight they play the Myers Cleaners at Ashland, and tomorrow they go to Columbus to meet the J. & K. Shoes. Sunday they take on the Fink & Heinie team from Springfield in a double header at North Lake.

Passeau Jinxes Dodgers

Bean Ball Episode Made Claude Angry.

By SID FEDER

One of those slants tossed by Hugh Casey two years ago got Claude so steamed up he's been taking it out on the Dodgers ever since.

Claude was so peeved that afternoon of July 19, 1940, at Wrigley field that he started to take on the whole Brooklyn ball club, bare-knuckles. These antics shocked National League Prexy Ford Frick so that he pinned a $75 fine on the Chicago Cubs' ace elbower.

Ever since then, the man from Millsaps has been taking that "six bits" out, a la Shylock. In the course of two years, he's knocked off Brooklyn seven times and lost only two games.

Right now he's pretty warm for June—or any other month. He hasn't been beaten since May 5. So last evening, Manager Jimmy Wilson asked him to go out there against the Brooklyns. He served up a five-hitter and he didn't let a Dodger get past second. In fact, only two got as far as that. And with the help of some fair country clouting by Lou Novikoff, Bill Nicholson and James (Double-X) Foxx he waltzed home with a 6-0 decision.

* * *

The triumph moved the Cubs back into fifth place and dropped the Pittsburgh Pirates into sixth, because the Bucs lost the only other game on the big league schedule yesterday. This was a 6-2 set-back pinned on them by the New York Giants.

* * *

The American league's eastern clubs open their western swing today, and the National league's east entertains the folks from the west Except that Brooklyn and the Cubs will take the day off to rest up

Coast Stars Rate Favorites

Southern Cal Trackmen Again Oppose Buckeyes.

By TOMMY DEVINE

EVANSTON, Ill.—(U.P.)—An all-star track and field squad from the Pacific coast conference rates as a heavy favorite to defeat a selected Big Ten team in their sixth annual dual meet tonight at Northwestern university.

Coast stars have dominated the series since it was inaugurated in 1937, winning all five meets by decisive scores On paper the Big Ten representatives do not appear to possess enough class to match the all-around brilliance of the far-westerners this year.

Southern California, which Saturday won its eighth straight national collegiate athletic association track title at Lincoln, Neb., supplies a heavy part of the power for the coast aggregation. The Trojans contribute 12 of the 28 men who form the invading squad.

Ohio State, winner of the Big Ten indoor and outdoor crowns, is represented by 10 athletes to lead the schools forming the host team

Six performers who won individual championships in the N. C. A. A. meet are among the meet competitions This list is topped by "Hurrying Hal" Davis of California and Bob Wright of Ohio State, the only double winners in the Lincoln classic.

Davis, currently tagged as the "world's fastest human," won the 100 and 220 yard dashes, while Wright was victorious in the high and low hurdles for the second straight year.

The remaining N C A. A. title-holders entered are Cliff Bourland of Southern California in the 440, Dallas Dupre of Ohio State in the broad jump; Jack Defield of Minnesota in the pole vault and Bob Fitch of Minnesota in the discus throw.

Other standout entrants included Campbell Kane, Indiana's great middle distance star, Bob Rehberg of Illinois: Leroy Weed, John Wachtler and Carl Merritt of southern California, Roy Maggard of U C L. A. and Ed Hertel of Stanford.

Four meet records are in danger of falling if weather conditions for the twilight meet are favorable. Davis in his sprint specialties, Wright in the high hurdles and Bourland in the quarter have turned in times this season which are under the existing marks.

In addition to the record attempts of the collegians, Cornelius Warmerdam, the Piedmont, (Cal.) school teacher, will seek a new world's pole vaulting mark in an exhibition event.

Warmerdam, who is prepping for the forthcoming national A. A. U. meet, is hopeful of making a 16 foot vault before the outdoor season ends To aid him in the attempt here a special runway has been built to give him the longest take-off run of his career.

WIN EXHIBITION

ALBANY, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The Cincinnati Reds defeated Albany of the Eastern league, 3-0, in an exhibition game last night. The Reds open a series with the Braves at Boston today.

Named Coach At Appleseed

GUY VAN NOSTRAND

Butler high school Coach Guy Van Nostrand last night was appointed coach of Johnny Appleseed junior high school athletes for the next school year at the meeting of the Mansfield board of education. Van Nostrand, former Mt. Vernon high school line star, has his degree in physical education from Ohio State.

Roll Out The Bowl For That So Blind Paul Waner

By JACK GUENTHER

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Advocates of the early to bed, early to rise and avoid wine when it's red etcetera philosophies are shuddering from the tips of their blue noses to the soles of their button shoes today For up in Boston the boys are gathered around to swear Punch Bowl Paul Waner into the most exclusive fraternity in baseball—the 3,000-hit club

At last count, the small, wiry and completely convivial outfielder who was born 38 years ago in an Oklahoma town with the throat-clearing name of Harrah—and it's as fine an ant hill as you'd hope to see—had boosted his total number of hits to 2,998. Barring rain (sssh), Punch Bowl Paul has an excellent chance of climbing over the hump this afternoon.

Then, brothers, let the roundelays ring loud and long.

In years past, when Ty Cobb, Ed Collins, Pop Anson, Nap Lajoie, Hans Wagner, and Tris Speaker crashed the golden circle, the bards celebrated the occasion by penning eulogies of their keen eyesight, rigorous devotion to duty and complete abstainance from the liquid fruit of the grain. Not so today, however, for Punch Bowl Paul just doesn't fit that pattern

For instance, he can't see keenly enough to read a billboard or recognize Brother Lloyd an hour after twilight The only figures he scans easily are those on his pay-check or behind footlights. It is reported his eyes have been weak for 17 years But he didn't realize it until he left Pittsburgh two seasons ago and got a glimpse of the sun

Too, while he is just fair on grounders, when it comes to hawking high balls he has no equal. He developed his vaunted right arm with painstaking elbow bending exercises. His fluid grace at the plate was evolved after an intensive study of swinging doors.

Many legends have been produced during the years since Waner, just a 140-pound youngster with a drawl and an uncanny knack of hitting a ball, came to Pittsburgh from the west coast—tales of his golfing, of his fishing and hunting and of his extra-curricular recreation. The only one he ever has denied was the report that he had adopted a milk diet.

There is the story of how once, while advancing from second on a hit and run play, he put down his head, dashed madly towards third and started his slide halfway down the base path. As the cloud of dust began thinning Waner heard himself called out. He had missed third by 10 feet and slid into a bare spot in the outfield.

Then there is the epic yarn concerning the phantom fly ball. Waner was playing the outfield when he heard a sharp crack and saw the ball head towards his position He carefully followed its course right up into the grandstand and lunged desperately—only to find that instead of the ball he had been pursuing an exceptionally large moth.

But there are important matters to be listed For Punch Bowl Paul is one of the truly great hitters of history He has a lifetime average of .338, is the youngest man ever to collect 3,000 hits and has reached his mark four years earlier than any of his predecessors

Waner has knocked more hits than Rogers Hornsby, has a higher percentage than Collins, driven in 500 more runs than Cobb and slapped out more singles, doubles and triples than Babe Ruth. Only in home runs is his record deficient And that's because Waner is a trifle on the small side to be a power hitter. Another important point, he has struck out only 300-odd times.

If Paul doesn't get his two hits today, he will get them tomorrow or on Thursday. For unless he breaks down faster than a dictator's dream of world conquest, he just can't miss.

* * *

Paul may not be with us much longer. His average has fallen off this season and the old man with the scythe is coming close. But when he goes he will leave us plenty to remember him by—things like Charlie Grimm's analysis of his skill. Grimm, asked if Waner had a weakness, replied:

Teter Plays Return Show

Sets Record Leap In Ashland Thrill Event.

Lucky Teter thrill fans will have another opportunity to see the world's champion daredevil and his Hell Drivers next Sunday afternoon at the Ashland Fairgrounds

Teter decided to remain over for the repeat show when several thousand fans were unable to attend last Sunday's 28-event program because of the all night downpour and the Sunday morning showers

Despite the treacherous condition of the half-mile track and the low hanging clouds, Lucky and his internationally famous automobile test drivers risked the added hazards in a full program last Sunday.

* * *

For a moment during Lucky's sensational 'Rocket Car Leap" it looked like the ace daredevil's spectacular career would come to an abrupt end, but he manhandled his speeding car to right it on all four wheels. At the end of his new world's record leap, the nose of the car dug into the receiving rampway and the rear of the car remained high in the air. Veteran Hell Drivers said if the rear end had remained a foot higher the car would have crashed end over end, perhaps crushing Teter inside. The jump was 145 long and 20 feet high, the longest and highest jump he ever has made on a half-mile track, the measurements and the magic eye camera showed.

Yankees Travel To Flag

Hope To Clinch Title on Present Road Trip.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—The Yankees hit the road today to play 22 games in alien ball parks before they return home on July 5, by which time they expect to have the American league pennant clinched in keeping with that old baseball belief that the club which leads on July 4 will go on to the championship. Now leading the pack by 9½ games, the Yankees almost certainly will be in front when the fourth rolls around, and, moreover, may actually have their place in the next World series practically assured unless some of the opposition starts showing something quickly.

On wins and losses for the season, the Yankees hold an edge over every club in their circuit except the Detroit Tigers, who have broken even with the champions in six games for a tie so far. These two teams clash in a double header today that starts a series out in Detroit.

As for the rest of the clubs, the Yankees have taken the second place Boston Red Sox five games to three; the Cleveland Indians five to two; the St. Louis Browns five to three, the Philadelphia Athletics six to one; the Chicago White Sox eight to goose-egg, and the Washington Senators, nine to one

Excepting only the Senators, they all will get their chance to do something about that situation right in their own parks while the Yankees are on the road this time, for they play in every American league city, save Washington before they come back home for a long stand broken by the All-Star games of July 6 and July 7 here and at Cleveland

If there is any solace left for the opposition viewing the Yankee scourge it may come from the fact that the Yankees have played considerably better ball at home this season than they have on the road, although they have been something less than pushovers wherever encountered.

They have won 28 and lost eight at home against a record of 13 wins and five losses on the road up to today, subject to change without notice.

Over in the other league, where three or four clubs are of almost equal strength there is no such clean-cut superiority by one over all the rest in the matter of wins and losses for the season, and that National league race is getting tighter all the time.

The Dodgers now are in front by only five games, which is a goodly edge, but not insurmountable if the St. Louis Cardinals go off on a streak. And the Cards, incidentally, hold an edge of three games to one over the Dodgers for the season so far, while the Cards in turn trail Cincinnati, which trails the New York Giants in wins and losses and so on down the line.

Brewers Pull On 7-League Boots

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee's Brewers have pulled on their seven-league boots to take a giant's step toward first place in the American association.

They swept a twin bill from Indianapolis last night to climb within one game of the idle league-leading Kansas City Blues.

Walter Lanfranconi pitched three-hit ball at Milwaukee captured the opener, 1-0, but a total of 30 base hits were clouted before the Brewers claimed a 9-8 victory in the nightcap.

Toledo was pushed deeper into the basement as Minneapolis won, 3 to 2

Vedie Himsl posted his seventh victory on a 10-hit performance which was sufficient to give St. Paul a 6-3 count over Columbus. The Saints rallied behind the perfect batwork of Jake Powell who hit a double and three singles. Jim Gleeson paced the Red Bird attack with two doubles and a single.

Fleming And Williams Hit

Indian Rookie and Red Sox Slugger Grab Honors.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The big noise of the past week's hitting fireworks came from the loud bats of Les Fleming, Cleveland's kid first baseman, and Ted Williams, the Red Sox swatter.

While the leadership of the two leagues remained the same, with the Yanks' Joe Gordon head man in the American and Brooklyn's Pete Reiser the No. 1 boy in the National, Fleming and Williams took a particular liking to all pitchers during the seven-day span to advance 13 and 14 points, respectively, and climb into a tie for four place in the junior circuit with .328 averages each.

* * *

Ducky Medwick, another comebacker after a slow start, climbed into second place in the National league standings with 330, compared to Reiser's .363 Babe Phelps, the Pirates' round backstop, was dropped from the No. 1 spot on the list because he had fewer than 100 times at bat, the minimum recognized at this point in the season by the loop's official statistical bureau.

Give Me Bob, Says Walter

'With Jones Swinging We'll Beat the Ryders.'

DETROIT—(AP)—If he can get Capt. Bobby Jones of the army air corps on his side, Walter Hagen is convinced he has the combination to beat the American Ryder cup team.

Hagen, deserting his captaincy of the American cuppers for the first time to pick an array of challengers for matches here July 18 and 19, disclosed today he would ask Bobby this week. If Bobby says yes, it should be a particularly interesting situation.

Sir Walter intends to take active part this year in the matches, which have produced $30,000 for the Red Cross and United Service organizations the last two years. Hagen's cuppers defeated Gene Sarazen's challengers, 7 to 5, in 1940 but last year Jones, beating Henry Picard in singles competition, led the challengers to a reversal of the margin.

* * *

Points For Stretch Drive

Boudreau Thinks His Hurlers Will Click.

This was the news which greeted the Washington Senators when they arrived for tonight's tangle, the opening contest of the Tribe's 13-game home stand.

It was particularly bad news for the Senators since the Redskins have scalped Washington six times in seven games.

"We're pretty close to the halfway mark," Boudreau said. "When we reach it we will have our pitching staff lined up definitely. We want five regular starters. We haven't picked them so far, because my plan is to give everyone a thorough trial.

"I think it will work out all right. We're aiming at a good second half club. In the past, we've had too many good first half clubs. When we get our pitching order settled, we might put on quite a finish."

The Redskins have played 59 games, about 18 short of the halfway mark.

SEES BIG PLAY

CHICAGO—(INS)— Handicapped by restricted train service because of the war and beset with numerous rainy days, the Lincoln Fields race track nevertheless will report a 20 per cent increase in the amount of its mutuel handle, Col. Matt J Winn, who operates the track, predicted today.

CHAPTER VII

Lunch proceeded without further ado in the Sweet shop, with Kay in command of the service pantry.

"Saints 'liv, Miss Kay, ma'am, you sho does fix 'em sandwiches purty," Susie admired. "Trumpin' off de corners and cuttin' 'em criss-cross. Bettah not go cuttin' so much chicken in 'em, Miss' Lawd say ease up on de chicken."

"Skimpy sandwiches are an abomination," Kay said, whisking a slice of white meat, then a slice of dark between thin slices of bread.

Susie rolled her eyes.

"They's—what you say?" she asked. "Bom bom?"

"Never mind. I'll explain later. We want our sandwiches to be good—the best in town. That's the most important thing for us to remember. Now the lettuce, Susie . . . the tomatoes . . . we'll marinate them in the French dressing."

"What's 'at we'se gwine do . . . marilate? Law me, Miss Kay, you does have de funniest talk . . . can't no one understand yuh, wid all dem great big whopper wo'ds what come out'n you-alls mouf."

Two hours later the luncheon crowd had come and gone. Susie was "tidyin' up" in the service pantry. Bessie Munsell was arranging the tables for tea-time stragglers.

"We had a half dozen re-orders on the chicken sandwiches," she told Kay. "It never happened before . . . not in this eatery."

"Good." Kay helped with the tables. "We'll have to think up ways to get more re-orders. Mother makes delicious chicken salad rolls . . . scoops out some of the center and fills them with chicken salad. We might try that one day."

"Um," Bessie said doubtfully. "Sounds swell. I could go for that kind of a deal myself. That is if the boss will stand for such fancy stuff."

"Of course he'll stand for it," Kay said. "He's in business to sell goods isn't he? Good things to eat. The better the goodies the more he'll sell. I'll bet we can have people coming to the Sweet shop for chicken rolls in no time."

Only an occasional customer dropped in at the shop. Outside, Center street drowsed in the summer sun, half-conscious of the life that trickled along its pavements.

She was meditating on the fact that the green was a particularly poisonous shade and that the pink rose with bud in one corner was bulbous and unnatural.

Packaging, she thought, is so important. Whoever selected this green box could not have done worse. Poisonous green and bulbous pink.

"What's the trouble, Miss Kenyon? You don't seem to like our candy much." Kay had not been aware that the proprietor of the shop was watching her in a mirror.

"Oh . . . why . . ." she stammered, "I . . . that is . . . it isn't the candy, Mr. Lord. The chocolates seem fresh, and creamy. I tasted one that was squashed. It's the box."

"What's wrong with the box? That's a brand new lot. Just came in."

"I'm sorry. I didn't mean to be critical."

"You didn't mean to be, but you are. Out with it. You don't like the box, why?"

There was no belligerence in the question. Merely a healthy curiosity. It encouraged Kay to speak.

"I didn't quite like the shade," she said, frankly now. "It struck me as being—well, garish. Maybe it's the contrast of the fat, too-pink rose in the corner. It has sort of a—a—violent effect."

Lord studied the pile of candy boxes for a moment, closing one eye, then the other for perspective. The result brought a scowl.

"I believe you're right," he said, scratching a puzzled forehead. "By golly, you are right. I wondered what was wrong with 'em, but I couldn't put my finger on it. They look like something you'd get in a cheap store, not in a high class shop. Wait 'till I get hold of that salesman who talked me into 'em! Don't bother to pack any more of 'em. Use the plain white boxes with the gold letters. There'll be enough until we can get others."

The weariness Kay had begun to feel by reason of unaccustomed effort was gone. She was elated, happy. She was going to like working in the Sweet shop. She was going to like working for Mr. Lord. A worker. No longer a waster.

Once again time began to gallop for Kay. She busied herself packing the white boxes. So many things to be done in a shop like this, infinitesimal tasks many of them, yet important if the place was to be as immaculate, as inviting as it should be.

The afternoon was almost spent. Uneventful. Demanding. There had been a few wide eyes, a few raised eyebrows, some surreptitious whispers, acquaintances, those who knew the younger Kenyon girl by sight, who wondered what she would be doing waiting on folks behind a counter. A whim, probably. Young folks nowadays were full of all sorts of notions. None of Kay's intimates of the younger set, none of the matrons of the older "elect" had happened in to see her in her new role of wage earner.

"Time we rolled down our sleeves and signed off," Bessie said, glancing at the clock in front of the jewelers across the street. "A man clerk takes over in the evening. Wait a minute—I talked too soon. Looks like a bevy of belles approaching."

Tally Holmes, in blue linen sports dress, a yellow scarf bound about her head, came into the shop. She was carrying on her usual line of chatter, flinging quips and inconsequences over her shoulder at her companions Eunice Ross, cool and detached, and the "fascinating stranger" who had been their companion at the Country club. He was a tall young man, tall and rangey with a shock of dark hair, firm chin and strong shoulders. He wore his clothes easily, but with no hint of the dandy. In fact, they were clothes that already had served him well.

Tally progressed half the length of the shop before she saw that the girl behind the counter, standing alert and attentive to serve, was Kay Kenyon. She stopped short, shook her shoulders, rubbed her eyes, looked again. Then dramatically, she said:

"Eunice, tell me . . . I'm not seeing things am I? That is Kay, our own devastating Kay—the red-head, I mean. Whatever are you doing, darling, behind that glass case"

Kay said, with a flick of a smile, "I'm selling sweets. May I help you? We have very special mints today."

Tally fell back a few paces.

"We have . . . you have . . . the heat has me," she whispered. "It's gone to my head. A glass of water . . . my reticule . . . my smelling salts."

Malice was like the crack of a whip. It brought the color flooding into Kay's cheeks, brought her head up higher, brought her to an even closer attention.

"There's nothing humorous about a job," she said, pleasantly enough. "My job is to sell sweets. Now if I may help you . . ." She waited.

Tally and Eunice continued to stare. The man stepped to the counter facing Kay. "I'm Gary Fowler," he said. "And you are . . . Kay Kenyon. I saw you at the Country club." His blue eyes captured her again, held her. They were troubled, but they were warm and kind.

McCoy's Band Here Tomorrow

THEATERS

Stage Band.

Clyde McCoy's orchestra takes over the Madison stage Wednesday for a single day's performance en route to Cedar Point to open a week's engagement Saturday. The band carries the Four Bennett Sisters, dancers and harmonists, and Jack Emerson, baritone. Recognized for his trumpet playing with the once famous "Louisville Loons," McCoy was spotted in a Kentucky club by Gus Edwards and taken to Chicago where he embarked on a successful career. "Sweetheart of the Fleet" is the picture attraction.

Marine Picture.

The entire facilities of the San Diego Marine training station were placed at the disposal of 20th Century-Fox during the filming of "To the Shores of Tripoli," technicolor production showing at the Ohio. Randolph Scott, John Payne and Maureen O'Hara are starred in the production that deals with the transformation of a cocky recruit into a fighting leatherneck. Maxie Rosenbloom, Minor Watson and Russell Hicks are in the cast.

Unusual Film.

Alfred Hitchcock's "Saboteur," ranked as an outstanding screen achievement, continues at the Madison. Dealing with enemy activities in the United States the story concerns a young aircraft worker who is unjustly accused of sabotage and his chase to reveal the real criminals. Robert Cummings and Priscilla Lane top the cast that includes Otto Kruger as enemy alien No. 1. "Henry and Dizzy," with Jimmy Lydon is the second production.

Enemy Plot.

"Nazi Agent," opening today at the Ritz, stars Conrad Veidt in the dual role of a ruthless commander of a Nazi sabotage ring and the latter's brother, a kindly gentle bookworm. When the commander is accidentally killed the brother assumes the identity of the other and sets out to expose the spy leaders. Ann Ayars, who made her first screen appearance in "Dr. Kildare's Victory," has the role of a fashion salon operator forced to act at the bidding of the spy ring. "Bullet Scars," with Regis Toomey, is the second film.

Comedy Romance.

Barbara Stanwyck and Gary Cooper are teamed in the comedy-romance, "Ball of Fire," showing at the Park. Miss Stanwyck appears as a night club entertainer who adds a few new words to the encyclopedia being developed by a group of distinguished professors. Forced to flee from her gangster friends she takes refuge with the professors. Oscar Homolka is in the cast. "Broadway Big Shot," with Ralph Byrd, is the co-feature.

Suffolk Downs Race Suspended

BOSTON—(AP)—Racing at Suffolk Downs, which provides more than $15,000 daily revenue to the commonwealth of Massachusetts, was suspended today when a deadlock between the Eastern Racing association and more than 200 owners of thoroughbreds stabled at the palatial track forced a cancellation of the 32nd program of its 60-day meeting.

The suspension followed when the striking horsemen's demands for an increase in minimum purses from $1,000 to $1,200 were rejected by President Charles F. Adams of the association.

Adams also refused to consider a proposal to spread over the other races any extra money that might accrue when a minimum claiming event is substituted for one calling for a larger purse.

Protesting horsemen brought the meeting to a standstill when they refused yesterday to enter their horses in the events that had been scheduled for today. At a meeting last night, according to Charles J. Goldman, a Lynn attorney serving as their spokesman, more than 200 owners and trainers unanimously agreed to keep their horses idle until they came to an agreement with the track management.

FOUR SEEDED IN PRO TOURNAMENT

Other seeded players include Bruce Barnes, Texas vetetran; Robert Harmon, of California, John Nogrady, of New York, and John Faunce of the Navy.

Notable absentees from the field of 32 include Fred Perry, who will be unable to defend the title due to an arm injury suffered last winter; Les Stoefen, who is ill, and possibly Big Bill Tilden, who has failed to file his entry.

BATTLES COACHES COLUMBIA CAGERS

Louis Booked For Title Bout

Opponent Probably Will Be Billy Conn.

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK —(INS)— The war department will grant permission for Joe Louis to defend his heavyweight title once more, in September, his opponent will most likely be Pvt. Billy Conn, and it is withholding the official announcement on this only until it is possible Conn's broken left hand is sufficiently healed to permit him to fight.

That is the latest communique whispered by the waves along Jacobs Beach—and is not to be taken too lightly. The waves have whispered much stranger things in the years that have rolled by and could tell some mighty strange stories. It is only natural, therefore, as you walk the strangest of all sports shores these summery afternoons to hear the veteran beachcombers "explaining" all the angles in the case of Corporal Joe Louis, the war department, the income tax department and the heavyweight championship of the world.

Surely by now, you are familiar with the drama.

Louis has twice risked his title and taken absolutely nothing in purses. He turned over his purse from a fight with Buddy Baer to the Navy Relief society and his share of the gate from a fight with Abe Simon to the Army Emergency Relief society.

Now he would like permission to fight for himself so he can square a tab of $117,000 in income taxes with his Uncle Samuel. Thought public opinion is strongly behind this fine champion and fine American, for some reason the war department has remained silent on whether he will be granted permission for at least one more battle.

Why? What's behind the delay? If there's a reason why doesn't the war department, in fairness to the champion, state it?

These are the most common questions debated along the beach and the side street swamiis are convinced now that they have the answer. Here's the way they have it doped:

When Conn, who was in line for a return shot at Louis, broke his hand on the skull of his father-in-law, Jimmy Smith, in the famous "kitchen battle" in Pittsburgh, six weeks ago, Bob Pastor was virtually pushed into the spot.

Promoter Mike Jacobs worked on the Pastor-Louis fight and it was virtually agreed on pending a final decision, due about a month ago. Mr. Pastor then fought Tami Mauriello, was made a 6 to 1 favorite and held to a draw, a very hard-fought draw, in a ten round bout.

The beachcombers claim this performance, more than anything else, has held up official approval of the Pastor-Louis bout and that the war department, anxious to get all the sugar it can out of what will probably be Corp. Louis' last title defense for the duration, is now determined to wait till the fall and put Billy the Kik back in there with Joe in their long-awaited return brawl.

What did Promoter Mike Jacobs think of all this?

"I don't think that's the case," said Mike, "because after Conn hurt his hand I talked to them about a Pastor fight and it was O. K., at that time. I expected an announcement last month but it's been held up and I don't know anymore about it than anyone else."

CHUCK BYERS LOSES WELL PITCHED GAME

ERIE, Pa.—(AP)—The Erie Sailors crept closer to the Mid-Atlantic league leadership today, and the Springfield Cardinals slumped deeper into the basement.

The Sailors whipped Springfield twice last night, 2 to 0 and 6 to 1, while the league-leading Charleston Senators dropped their third straight game to Dayton, 4 to 0. Chuck Byers held Dayton to five hits, but they were bunched for all four runs in the seventh.

At Zanesville, the Canton Terriers won a 5 to 2 victory from the Cubs.

HANK GREENBERG GOES TO HOSPITAL

The former star first baseman and outfielder of the Detroit Tigers was taken to the hospital after he had complained of severe abdominal pains. Medical officers at the station hospital declined to diagnose his case pending further observation, but said no operation was indicated for the present.

GOLFERS INVADE RIDGEMOOR COURSE

With Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan, Henry Picard, Lawson Little, Craig Wood and the rest of the clan on the scene, the field of 107 pros and amateurs was almost complete for Thursday's tee-off in a 72-hole medal play trip leading to the Hale America championship Sunday.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

The new Appleseed mentor is still rated as the best little man ever to play in a Mt. Vernon high school line. He played a guard back there in 1930 when Angus King turned out his best Yellow Jacket team, a double wingback, double and triple reverse outfit that depended a lot on the interference a watch-charm guard named Guy Van Nostrand provided.

When that little fellow, 135 pounds at the time, was out in front of the runners, the runners went places. Touchdowns from 35 yards out were the order of the day. Freddy Yeager, who later starred at the University of Cincinnati, George Smith, who did the same at Ohio U., Bob Bricker and Ed Weirick carried the ball and got the headlines, but when it came to picking an all-Central Ohio league team, Guy Van Nostrand was a unanimous choice of the league coaches.

That was a really great team that year. Mt. Vernon's big rival was is, and always has been Coshocton. And Coshocton had a good team, defending a league title won for two straight years

Both teams were undefeated when Coshocton came to town giving odds against the Jackets Score, Mt. Vernon 40, Coshocton 0.

Sky Wharton, old Ashland star, coaching Coshocton, pulled a tackle out of the lineup in the third quarter. "I can't tell where the ball's going," complained the tackle. "That's nothing," said Sky, "I'm sitting here on the bench and watching the whole works, and I don't know where the ball's going either."

Sky and the bewildered tackle could have saved themselves a lot of worry by watching Guy Van Nostrand. Where he went, the ball was sure to follow.

But I don't blame them much for being bewildered. The best bunch of ball handlers and hiders I've ever seen was that Mt. Vernon team of 1930. Many's the time I wrote on my notes, "Bricker five yards off right tackle," and then crossed it out to write "Weirick 35 yards around right end for a touchdown."

So well did they hide the ball, half of the opposing team would be bunched up where Bricker, without the pigskin, was tackled, and the other half would be standing around looking at the fleet-footed Weirick crossing the goal line, with Van Nostrand right in front of him.

Van went to Ohio State where he starred on the freshman team, but where Sam Willaman and Francis Schmidt told him he was too small for Big Ten football

So, while attending Ohio State, Van Nostrand coached the freshman team at Columbus North high for two years And nearly his entire line played three years of football for North.

Coach Mike Hagely of North told Coach Paul Snyder of the Mansfield Tygers. "I wanted to keen Van on the coaching staff, but at the time we couldn't arrange it."

Snyder tried to get him as an assistant coach when he was at Mt. Vernon, and when the coaching job opened up at Appleseed, he lost no time in recommending Van for the post.

Providents Lose Game At Chicago

Mansfield Provident Loan girls returned home last night from their softball trip to Chicago where they dropped a 6-3 decision to the Garden City club Sunday.

* * *

Fran Knapp let the Chicagoans down with two hits, but errors gave them three runs in the first inning, and helped with the other three.

Saturday's game with the same club was rained out. The Providents are booked back in Chicago for a game in August. Tonight they play the Myers Cleaners at Ashland, and tomorrow they go to Columbus to meet the J. & K. Shoes. Sunday they take on the Fink & Heinle team from Springfield in a double header at North Lake.

Passeau Jinxes Dodgers

Bean Ball Episode Made Claude Angry.

By SID FEDER

One of those slants tossed by Hugh Casey two years ago got Claude so steamed up he's been taking it out on the Dodgers ever since.

Claude was so peeved that afternoon of July 19, 1940, at Wrigley field that he started to take on the whole Brooklyn ball club, bare-knuckles. These antics shocked National League Prexy Ford Frick so that he pinned a $75 fine on the Chicago Cubs' ace elbower.

Ever since then, the man from Millsaps has been taking that "six bits" out, a la Shylock. In the course of two years, he's knocked off Brooklyn seven times and lost only two games.

Right now he's pretty warm for June—or any other month. He hasn't been beaten since May 5. So last evening, Manager Jimmy Wilson asked him to go out there against the Brooklyns. He served up a five-hitter and he didn't let a Dodger get past second. In fact, only two got as far as that. And with the help of some fair country clouting by Lou Novikoff, Bill Nicholson and James (Double-X) Foxx he waltzed home with a 6-0 decision.

* * *

The triumph moved the Cubs back into fifth place and dropped the Pittsburgh Pirates into sixth, because the Bucs lost the only other game on the big league schedule yesterday. This was a 6-2 set-back pinned on them by the New York Giants.

* * *

The American league's eastern clubs open their western swing today, and th National league's east entertains the folks from the west. Except that Brooklyn and the Cubs will take the day off to rest up.

Coast Stars Rate Favorites

Southern Cal Trackmen Again Oppose Buckeyes.

By TOMMY DEVINE

EVANSTON, Ill.—(UP)—An all-star track and field squad from the Pacific coast conference rates as a heavy favorite to defeat a selected Big Ten team in their sixth annual dual meet tonight at Northwestern university.

Coast stars have dominated the series since it was inaugurated in 1937, winning all five meets by decisive scores. On paper the Big Ten representatives do not appear to possess enough class to match the all-around brilliance of the far-westerners this year.

Southern California, which Saturday won its eighth straight national collegiate athletic association track title at Lincoln, Neb., supplies a heavy part of the power for the coast aggregation. The Trojans contribute 12 of the 28 men who form the invading squad.

Ohio State, winner of the Big Ten indoor and outdoor crowns, is represented by 10 athletes to lead the schools forming the host team.

Six performers who won individual championships in the N. C. A. A. meet are among the meet competitions. This list is topped by "Hurrying Hal" Davis of California and Bob Wright of Ohio State, the only double winners in the Lincoln classic.

Davis, currently tagged as the "world's fastest human," won the 100 and 220 yard dashes, while Wright was victorious in the high and low hurdles for the second straight year

The remaining N. C. A. A. titleholders entered are Cliff Bourland of Southern California in the 440; Dallas Dupre of Ohio State in the broad jump; Jack Defield of Minnesota in the pole vault and Bob Fitch of Minnesota in the discus throw.

Other standout entrants included Campbell Kane, Indiana's great middle distance star; Bob Rehberg of Illinois; Leroy Weed, John Wachtler and Carl Merritt of southern California; Roy Maggard of U. C. L. A. and Ed Hertel of Stanford.

Four meet records are in danger of falling if weather conditions for the twilight meet are favorable. Davis in his sprint specialties, Wright in the high hurdles and Bourland in the quarter have turned in times this season which are under the existing marks.

In addition to the record attempts of the collegians, Cornelius Warmerdam, the Piedmont, (Cal.) school teacher, will seek a new world's pole vaulting mark in an exhibition event.

Warmerdam, who is prepping for the forthcoming national A. A. U. meet, is hopeful of making a 16 foot vault before the outdoor season ends. To aid him in the attempt here a special runway has been built to give him the longest take-off run of his career.

WIN EXHIBITION

ALBANY, N. Y.—(UP)—The Cincinnati Reds defeated Albany of the Eastern league, 3-0, in an exhibition game last night. The Reds open a series with the Braves at Boston today.

Named Coach At Appleseed

GUY VAN NOSTRAND

Butler high school Coach Guy Van Nostrand last night was appointed coach of Johnny Appleseed junior high school athletes for the next school year at the meeting of the Mansfield board of education. Van Nostrand, former Mt. Vernon high school line star, has his degree in physical education from Ohio State.

Roll Out The Bowl For That So Blind Paul Waner

By JACK GUENTHER

NEW YORK — (UP)—Advocates of the early to bed, early to rise and avoid wine when it's red etcetera philosophies are shuddering from the tips of their blue noses to the soles of their button shoes today. For up in Boston the boys are gathered around to swear Punch Bowl Paul Waner into the most exclusive fraternity in baseball—the 3,000-hit club.

* * *

At last count, the small, wiry and completely convivial outfielder who was born 38 years ago in an Oklahoma town with the throat-clearing name of Harrah—and it's as fine an ant hill as you'd hope to see—had boosted his total number of hits to 2,998 Barring rain (sssh), Punch Bowl Paul has an excellent chance of climbing over the hump this afternoon.

Then, brothers, let the roundelays ring loud and long.

In years past, when Ty Cobb, Ed Collins, Pop Anson, Nap Lajoie, Hans Wagner, and Tris Speaker crashed the golden circle, the bards celebrated the occasion by penning eulogies of their keen eyesight, rigorous devotion to duty and complete abstainance from the liquid fruit of the grain. Not so today, however, for Punch Bowl Paul just doesn't fit that pattern.

For instance, he can't see keenly enough to read a billboard or recognize Brother Lloyd an hour after twilight. The only figures he scans easily are those on his pay-check or behind footlights It is reported his eyes have been weak for 17 years. But he didn't realize it until he left Pittsburgh two seasons ago and got a glimpse of the sun

Too, while he is just fair on grounders, when it comes to hawking high balls he has no equal He developed his vaunted right arm with painstaking elbow bending exercises His fluid grace at the plate was evolved after an intensive study of swinging doors.

Many legends have been produced during the years since Waner, just a 140-pound youngster with a drawl and an uncanny knack of hitting a ball, came to Pittsburgh from the west coast—tales of his golfing, of his fishing and hunting and of his extra-curricular recreation. The only one he ever has denied was the report that he had adopted a milk diet.

There is the story of how once, while advancing from second on a hit and run play, he put down his head, dashed madly towards third and started his slide halfway down the base path. As the cloud of dust began thinning Waner heard himself called out. He had missed third by 10 feet and slid into a bare spot in the outfield.

Then there is the epic yarn concerning the phantom fly ball. Waner was playing the outfield when he heard a sharp crack and saw the ball head towards his position. He carefully followed its course right up into the grandstand and lunged desperately—only to find that instead of the ball he had been pursuing an exceptionally large moth.

But there are important matters to be listed For Punch Bowl Paul is one of the truly great hitters of history He has a lifetime average of .338, is the youngest man ever to collect 3,000 hits and has reached his mark four years earlier than any of his predecessors.

Waner has knocked more hits than Rogers Hornsby, has a higher percentage than Collins, driven in 500 more runs than Cobb and slapped out more singles, doubles and triples than Babe Ruth. Only in home runs is his record deficient. And that's because Waner is a trifle on the small side to be a power hitter. Another important point, he has struck out only 300-odd times.

If Paul doesn't get his two hits today, he will get them tomorrow or on Thursday. For unless he breaks down faster than a dictator's dream of world conquest, he just can't miss.

* * *

Paul may not be with us much longer. His average has fallen off this season and the old man with the scythe is coming close But when he goes he will leave us plenty to remember him by—things like Charlie Grimm's analysis of his skill Grimm, asked if Waner had a weakness, replied:

Teter Plays Return Show

Sets Record Leap In Ashland Thrill Event.

Lucky Teter thrill fans will have another opportunity to see the world's champion daredevil and his Hell Drivers next Sunday afternoon at the Ashland Fairgrounds.

Teter decided to remain over for the repeat show when several thousand fans were unable to attend last Sunday's 28-event program because of the all night downpour and the Sunday morning showers.

* * *

Despite the treacherous condition of the half-mile track and the low hanging clouds, Lucky and his internationally famous automobile test drivers risked the added hazards in a full program last Sunday.

* * *

TRAP AIDS U. S. O.

ATLANTA — (AP) — A sandtrap on the Bobby Jones golf course is aiding the United Service organizations. The club ordered that every drive into the sandtrap in front of the tenth hole would cost the golfer 10 cents—to be dropped in a special bank at the club house.

Yankees Travel To Flag

Hope To Clinch Title on Present Road Trip.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—The Yankees hit the road today to play 22 games in alien ball parks before they return home on July 5, by which time they expect to have the American league pennant clinched in keeping with that old baseball belief that the club which leads on July 4 will go on to the championship. Now leading the pack by 9½ games, the Yankees almost certainly will be in front when the fourth rolls around, and, moreover, may actually have their place in the next World series practically assured unless some of the opposition starts showing something quickly.

On wins and losses for the season, the Yankees hold an edge over every club in their circuit except the Detroit Tigers, who have broken even with the champions in six games for a tie so far. These two teams clash in a double header today that starts a series out in Detroit.

As for the rest of the clubs, the Yankees have taken the second place Boston Red Sox five games to three; the Cleveland Indians five to two, the St. Louis Browns five to three; the Philadelphia Athletics six to one; the Chicago White Sox eight to goose-egg, and the Washington Senators, nine to one.

Excepting only the Senators, they all will get their chance to do something about that situation right in their own parks while the Yankees are on the road this time, for they play in every American league city, save Washington before they come back home for a long stand broken by the All-Star games of July 6 and July 7 here and at Cleveland.

If there is any solace left for the opposition viewing the Yankee scourge it may come from the fact that the Yankees have played considerably better ball at home this season than they have on the road, although they have been something less than pushovers wherever encountered.

They have won 28 and lost eight at home against a record of 13 wins and five losses on the road up to today, subject to change without notice.

Over in the other league, where three or four clubs are of almost equal strength there is no such clean-cut superiority by one over all the rest in the matter of wins and losses for the season, and that National league race is getting tighter all the time.

The Dodgers now are in front by only five games, which is a goodly edge, but not insurmountable if the St. Louis Cardinals go off on a streak. And the Cards, incidentally, hold an edge of three games to one over the Dodgers for the season so far, while the Cards in turn trail Cincinnati, which trails the New York Giants in wins and losses and so on down the line.

Brewers Pull On 7-League Boots

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee's Brewers have pulled on their seven-league boots to take a giant's step toward first place in the American association.

They swept a twin bill from Indianapolis last night to climb within one game of the idle league-leading Kansas City Blues.

Walter Lanfranconi pitched three-hit ball at Milwaukee captured the opener, 1-0, but a total of 30 base hits were clouted before the Brewers claimed a 9-8 victory in the nightcap.

Toledo was pushed deeper into the basement as Minneapolis won, 3 to 2

Vedie Himsl posted his seventh victory on a 10-hit performance which was sufficient to give St. Paul a 6-3 count over Columbus. The Saints rallied behind the perfect batwork of Jake Powell who hit a double and three singles. Jim Gleeson paced the Red Bird attack with two doubles and a single.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Minnesota's Bob Fitch, who won the N. C. A. A. discus throw title and will pitch for the national A. A. U. crown this week, hasn't been beaten this year and in practice has equalled Archie Harris' world record of 174 feet 8¾ inches.

SPORTSMENTION.

Fleming And Williams Hit

Indian Rookie and Red Sox Slugger Grab Honors.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The big noise of the past week's hitting fireworks came from the loud bats of Les Fleming, Cleveland's kid first baseman, and Ted Wilhams, the Red Sox swatter.

While the leadership of the two leagues remained the same, with the Yanks' Joe Gordon head man in the American and Brooklyn's Pete Reiser the No. 1 boy in the National, Fleming and Williams took a particular liking to all pitchers during the seven-day span to advance 13 and 14 points, respectively, and climb into a tie for four place in the junior circuit with .328 averages each.

* * *

Ducky Medwick, another comebacker after a slow start, climbed into second place in the National league standings with 330, compared to Reiser's .363 Babe Phelps, the Pirates' round backstop, was dropped from the No. 1 spot on the list because he had fewer than 100 times at bat, the minimum recognized at this point in the season by the loop's official statistical bureau.

Fight Results

Give Me Bob, Says Walter

'With Jones Swinging We'll Beat the Ryders.'

DETROIT—(AP)—If he can get Capt. Bobby Jones of the army air corps on his side, Walter Hagen is convinced he has the combination to beat the American Ryder cup team.

Hagen, deserting his captaincy of the American cuppers for the first time to pick an array of challengers for matches here July 18 and 19, disclosed today he would ask Bobby this week. If Bobby says yes, it should be a particularly interesting situation.

Sir Walter intends to take active part this year in the matches, which have produced $30,000 for the Red Cross and United Service organizations the last two years. Hagen's cuppers defeated Gene Sarazen's challengers, 7 to 5, in 1940 but last year Jones, beating Henry Picard in singles competition, led the challengers to a reversal of the margin.

* * *

Points For Stretch Drive

Boudreau Thinks His Hurlers Will Click.

This was the news which greeted the Washington Senators when they arrived for tonight's tangle, the opening contest of the Tribe's 13-game home stand.

It was particularly bad news for the Senators since the Redskins have scalped Washington six times in seven games.

"We're pretty close to the halfway mark," Boudreau said. "When we reach it we will have our pitching staff lined up definitely. We want five regular starters. We haven't picked them so far, because my plan is to give everyone a thorough trial.

"I think it will work out all right. We're aiming at a good second half club. In the past, we've had too many good first half clubs. When we get our pitching order settled, we might put on quite a finish."

The Redskins have played 59 games, about 18 short of the halfway mark.

SEES BIG PLAY

CHICAGO—(INS)— Handicapped by restricted train service because of the war and beset with numerous rainy days, the Lincoln Fields race track nevertheless will report a 20 per cent increase in the amount of its mutuel handle, Col. Matt J. Winn, who operates the track, predicted today.

"Skimpy sandwiches are an abomination," Kay said, whisking a slice of white meat, then a slice of dark between thin slices of bread.

Susie rolled her eyes.

"They's—what you say?" she asked. "Bom bom?"

"Never mind. I'll explain later. We want our sandwiches to be good—the best in town. That's the most important thing for us to remember. Now the lettuce, Susie . . . the tomatoes . . . we'll marinate them in the French dressing."

"What's 'at we'se gwine do . . . marilate? Law me, Miss Kay, you does have de funniest talk . . . can't no one understand yuh, wid all dem great big whopper wo'ds what come out'n youalls mouf."

Two hours later the luncheon crowd had come and gone. Susie was "tidyin' up" in the service pantry. Bessie Munsell was arranging the tables for tea-time stragglers.

"We had a half dozen re-orders on the chicken sandwiches," she told Kay. "It never happened before . . . not in this eatery."

"Good." Kay helped with the tables. "We'll have to think up ways to get more re-orders. Mother makes delicious chicken salad rolls . . . scoops out some of the center and fills them with chicken salad. We might try that one day."

"Um," Bessie said doubtfully. "Sounds swell. I could go for that kind of a deal myself. That is if the boss will stand for such fancy stuff."

"Of course he'll stand for it," Kay said. "He's in business to sell goods isn't he? Good things to eat. The better the goodies the more he'll sell. I'll bet we can have people coming to the Sweet shop for chicken rolls in no time."

The mid-afternoon lull settled over the store.

Only an occasional customer dropped in at the shop. Outside, Center street drowsed in the summer sun, half-conscious of the life that trickled along its pavements.

Kay, at a marble table in the back of the shop, packed chocolates in shiny green boxes.

She was meditating on the fact that the green was a particularly poisonous shade and that the pink rose with bud in one corner was bulbous and unnatural.

Packaging, she thought, is so important. Whoever selected this green box could not have done worse. Poisonous green and bulbous pink.

"What's the trouble, Miss Kenyon? You don't seem to like our candy much." Kay had not been aware that the proprietor of the shop was watching her in a mirror.

"Oh . . . why . . ." she stammered, "I . . . that is . . . it isn't the candy, Mr. Lord. The chocolates seem fresh, and creamy. I tasted one that was squashed. It's the box."

"What's wrong with the box? That's a brand new lot. Just came in."

"I'm sorry. I didn't mean to be critical."

"You didn't mean to be, but you are. Out with it. You don't like the box, why?"

There was no belligerence in the question. Merely a healthy curiosity. It encouraged Kay to speak.

"I didn't quite like the shade," she said, frankly now. "It struck me as being—well, garish. Maybe it's the contrast of the fat, too-pink rose in the corner. It has sort of a—a—violent effect."

Lord studied the pile of candy boxes for a moment, closing one eye, then the other for perspective. The result brought a scowl.

"I believe you're right," he said, scratching a puzzled forehead. "By golly, you are right. I wondered what was wrong with 'em, but I couldn't put my finger on it. They look like something you'd get in a cheap store, not in a high class shop. Wait 'till I get hold of that salesman who talked me into 'em! Don't bother to pack any more of 'em. Use the plain white boxes with the gold letters. There'll be enough until we can get others."

* * *

The weariness Kay had begun to feel by reason of unaccustomed effort was gone. She was elated, happy. She was going to like working in the Sweet shop. She was going to like working for Mr. Lord. A worker. No longer a waster.

Once again time began to gallop for Kay. She busied herself packing the white boxes. So many things to be done in a shop like this, infinitesimal tasks many of them, yet important if the place was to be as immaculate, as inviting as it should be.

The afternoon was almost spent. Uneventful. Demanding. There had been a few wide eyes, a few raised eyebrows, some surreptitious whispers, acquaintances, those who knew the younger Kenyon girl by sight, who wondered what she would be doing waiting on folks behind a counter. A whim, probably. Young folks nowadays were full of all sorts of notions. None of Kay's intimates of the younger set, none of the matrons of the older "elect" had happened in to see her in her new role of wage earner.

"Time we rolled down our sleeves and signed off," Bessie said, glancing at the clock in front of the jewelers across the street. "A man clerk takes over in the evening. Wait a minute—I talked too soon. Looks like a bevy of belles approaching."

Kay heard laughter, gay and light. Voices . . . familiar voices. She must face that gayety, and lightness with courage, with courtesy.

Tally Holmes, in blue linen sports dress, a yellow scarf bound about her head, came into the shop. She was carrying on her usual line of chatter, flinging quips and inconsequences over her shoulder at her companions Eunice Ross, cool and detached, and the "fascinating stranger" who had been their companion at the Country club. He was a tall young man, tall and rangey with a shock of dark hair, firm chin and strong shoulders. He wore his clothes easily, but with no hint of the dandy. In fact, they were clothes that already had served him well.

Tally progressed half the length of the shop before she saw that the girl behind the counter, standing alert and attentive to serve, was Kay Kenyon. She stopped short, shook her shoulders, rubbed her eyes, looked again. Then dramatically, she said:

"Eunice, tell me . . . I'm not seeing things am I? That is Kay, our own devastating Kay—the red-head, I mean. Whatever are you doing, darling, behind that glass case"

Kay said, with a flick of a smile, "I'm selling sweets. May I help you? We have very special mints today."

Tally fell back a few paces.

"We have . . . you have . . . the heat has me," she whispered. "It's gone to my head. A glass of water . . . my reticule . . . my smelling salts."

"It's nothing," Eunice said, her carefully preserved calm shaken a bit. "One of Kay's little jokes. She does have the oddest sense of humor."

Malice was like the crack of a whip. It brought the color flooding into Kay's cheeks, brought her head up higher, brought her to an even closer attention.

"There's nothing humorous about a job," she said, pleasantly enough. "My job is to sell sweets. Now if I may help you . . ." She waited.

Tally and Eunice continued to stare. The man stepped to the counter facing Kay. "I'm Gary Fowler," he said. "And you are . . . Kay Kenyon. I saw you at the Country club." His blue eyes captured her again, held her. They were troubled, but they were warm and kind.

McCoy's Band Here Tomorrow

THEATERS

Stage Band.

Clyde McCoy's orchestra takes over the Madison stage Wednesday for a single day's performance en route to Cedar Point to open a week's engagement Saturday. The band carries the Four Bennett Sisters, dancers and harmonists, and Jack Emerson, baritone. Recognized for his trumpet playing with the once famous "Louisville Loons," McCoy was spotted in a Kentucky club by Gus Edwards and taken to Chicago where he embarked on a successful career. "Sweetheart of the Fleet" is the picture attraction.

Marine Picture.

The entire facilities of the San Diego Marine training station were placed at the disposal of 20th Century-Fox during the filming of "To the Shores of Tripoli," technicolor production showing at the Ohio. Randolph Scott, John Payne and Maureen O'Hara are starred in the production that deals with the transformation of a cocky recruit into a fighting leatherneck. Maxie Rosenbloom, Minor Watson and Russell Hicks are in the cast.

Unusual Film.

Alfred Hitchcock's "Saboteur," ranked as an outstanding screen achievement, continues at the Madison. Dealing with enemy activities in the United States the story concerns a young aircraft worker who is unjustly accused of sabotage and his chase to reveal the real criminals. Robert Cummings and Priscilla Lane top the cast that includes Otto Kruger as enemy alien No. 1. "Henry and Dizzy," with Jimmy Lydon is the second production.

Enemy Plot.

"Nazi Agent," opening today at the Ritz, stars Conrad Veidt in the dual role of a ruthless commander of a Nazi sabotage ring and the latter's brother, a kindly gentle bookworm. When the commander is accidentally killed the brother assumes the identity of the other and sets out to expose the spy leaders. Ann Ayars, who made her first screen appearance in "Dr. Kildare's Victory," has the role of a fashion salon operator forced to act at the bidding of the spy ring. "Bullet Scars," with Regis Toomey, is the second film.

Comedy Romance.

Barbara Stanwyck and Gary Cooper are teamed in the comedy-romance, "Ball of Fire," showing at the Park. Miss Stanwyck appears as a night club entertainer who adds a few new words to the encyclopedia being developed by a group of distinguished professors. Forced to flee from her gangster friends she takes refuge with the professors. Oscar Homolka is in the cast. "Broadway Big Shot," with Ralph Byrd, is the co-feature.

Suffolk Downs Race Suspended

BOSTON—(AP)—Racing at Suffolk Downs, which provides more than $15,000 daily revenue to the commonwealth of Massachusetts, was suspended today when a deadlock between the Eastern Racing association and more than 200 owners of thoroughbreds stabled at the palatial track forced a cancellation of the 32nd program of its 60-day meeting.

The suspension followed when the striking horsemen's demands for an increase in minimum purses from $1,000 to $1,200 were rejected by President Charles F. Adams of the association.

Adams also refused to consider a proposal to spread over the other races any extra money that might accrue when a minimum claiming event is substituted for one calling for a larger purse.

Protesting horsemen brought the meeting to a standstill when they refused yesterday to enter their horses in the events that had been scheduled for today. At a meeting last night, according to Charles J. Goldman, a Lynn attorney serving as their spokesman, more than 200 owners and trainers unanimously agreed to keep their horses idle until they came to an agreement with the track management.

FOUR SEEDED IN PRO TOURNAMENT

Other seeded players include Bruce Barnes, Texas vetetran; Robert Harmon, of California, John Nogrady, of New York, and John Faunce of the Navy.

Notable absentees from the field of 32 include Fred Perry, who will be unable to defend the title due to an arm injury suffered last winter; Les Stoefen, who is ill, and possibly Big Bill Tilden, who has failed to file his entry.

BATTLES COACHES COLUMBIA CAGERS

Battles, who was an all-American in his senior year at West Virginia Wesleyan in 1931, has been assistant football coach at Columbia since 1938. He succeeds Lieutenant Paul Mooney, now a physical instructor in the Naval Air Corps.

AUTOCALL WINS

Louis Booked For Title Bout

Opponent Probably Will Be Billy Conn.

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK —(INS)— The war department will grant permission for Joe Louis to defend his heavyweight title once more, in September, his opponent will most likely be Pvt. Billy Conn, and it is withholding the official announcement on this only until it is possible Conn's broken left hand is sufficiently healed to permit him to fight.

That is the latest communique whispered by the waves along Jacobs Beach—and is not to be taken too lightly. The waves have whispered much stranger things in the years that have rolled by and could tell some mighty strange stories. It is only natural, therefore, as you walk the strangest of all sports shores these summery afternoons to hear the veteran beachcombers "explaining" all the angles in the case of Corporal Joe Louis, the war department, the income tax department and the heavyweight championship of the world.

Surely by now, you are familiar with the drama.

Louis has twice risked his title and taken absolutely nothing in purses. He turned over his purse from a fight with Buddy Baer to the Navy Relief society and his share of the gate from a fight with Abe Simon to the Army Emergency Relief society.

Now he would like permission to fight for himself so he can square a tab of $117,000 in income taxes with his Uncle Samuel. Thought public opinion is strongly behind this fine champion and fine American, for some reason the war department has remained silent on whether he will be granted permission for at least one more battle.

Why? What's behind the delay? If there's a reason why doesn't the war department, in fairness to the champion, state it?

These are the most common questions debated along the beach and the side street swamiis are convinced now that they have the answer. Here's the way they have it doped:

When Conn, who was in line for a return shot at Louis, broke his hand on the skull of his father-in-law, Jimmy Smith, in the famous "kitchen battle" in Pittsburgh, six weeks ago, Bob Pastor was virtually pushed into the spot.

Promoter Mike Jacobs worked on the Pastor-Louis fight and it was virtually agreed on pending a final decision, due about a month ago. Mr. Pastor then fought Tami Mauriello, was made a 6 to 1 favorite and held to a draw, a very hard-fought draw, in a ten round bout.

The beachcombers claim this performance, more than anything else, has held up official approval of the Pastor-Louis bout and that the war department, anxious to get all the sugar it can out of what will probably be Corp. Louis' last title defense for the duration, is now determined to wait till the fall and put Billy the Kik back in there with Joe in their long-awaited return brawl.

What did Promoter Mike Jacobs think of all this?

"I don't think that's the case," said Mike, "because after Conn hurt his hand I talked to them about a Pastor fight and it was O. K., at that time. I expected an announcement last month but it's been held up and I don't know anymore about it than anyone else."

CHUCK BYERS LOSES WELL PITCHED GAME

ERIE, Pa.—(AP)—The Erie Sailors crept closer to the Mid-Atlantic league leadership today, and the Springfield Cardinals slumped deeper into the basement.

The Sailors whipped Springfield twice last night, 2 to 0 and 6 to 1, while the league-leading Charleston Senators dropped their third straight game to Dayton, 4 to 0. Chuck Byers held Dayton to five hits, but they were bunched for all four runs in the seventh.

At Zanesville, the Canton Terriers won a 5 to 2 victory from the Cubs.

HANK GREENBERG GOES TO HOSPITAL

The former star first baseman and outfielder of the Detroit Tigers was taken to the hospital after he had complained of severe abdominal pains. Medical officers at the station hospital declined to diagnose his case pending further observation, but said no operation was indicated for the present.

GOLFERS INVADE RIDGEMOOR COURSE

With Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan, Henry Picard, Lawson Little, Craig Wood and the rest of the clan on the scene, the field of 107 pros and amateurs was almost complete for Thursday's tee-off in a 72-hole medal play trip leading to the Hale America championship Sunday.

YOUR storeroom
CAN HELP WIN THE WAR!

Here's how you can make your storeroom do its patriotic duty:

—Help to supply the growing demand for used articles. Many people actually NEED those things which you aren't using.

CORK OAK CROP 20 YEARS AWAY

California's Tree Planting Program Expected To Produce Results.

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO — A scientific, systematic and state-wide planting of cork oak trees was launched in California with the intention of making the state the greatest cork-producing region of the world.

It is expected that the program will add a new million-dollar-a-year industry to the state's resources, but the first crop will not be harvested until 20 years from now.

Spain and Portugal have been the world's greatest cork-producing centers, but since the Spanish civil war in 1935, production has decreased so much that cork in the United States has become scarce.

At the present time, there are only two cork-producing plantations in the state. The first dates from 1878, and the second, sponsored by the University of California, from 1904.

Owing to the fact that a cork tree can be stripped of its cork bark only after 20 years of growth and then can only be stripped again every 8 years, the planting is being undertaken on a most systematic basis over a period of 8 years.

Next year 1,000,000 trees will be planted, and then an additional 1,000,000 trees for the next seven years.

1445 GRADUATE

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State university sent 1,445 graduates into the world today with the assurance that America at war is "proceeding more rapidly, more surely, more gigantically than our enemies ever dreamed was possible."

CITY WORKING HARD IN SCRAP RUBBER DRIVE

The army conservation program is reaching a point "where further savings will be difficult and may affect detrimentally the task of organizing our armed forces," he said in a formal statement.

Although the program generally has not resulted in loss of efficiency, he said, the changes in tank construction to cut the amount of rubber in treads and padding have created additional noise, greater difficulty in production, an increase in driving problems and more maintenance difficulties.

Patterson joined other officials in urging the donation of every bit of scrap rubber available to the war effort and a reduction in civilian use to a "bare minimum."

In a radio address last night, Sen. Harry S. Truman, D., Mo., charged that an "orgy of consumption" of crude rubber by civilian users in 1941 was the chief cause for failure to build up stockpiles.

On the same program Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold L. Ickes and Chairman William R. Boyd, jr., of the petroleum industry war council, appealed for full co-operation.

Both Truman and Patterson emphasized the need for tires to get war workers to their jobs, and Truman said it may become necessary to requisition tires for this purpose, but that it first must be "absolutely clear that voluntary rationing is impossible."

Individual stations reported they had received amounts of scrap rubber varying from 150 to 800 pounds. Many of the scrap items were received in small batches, but there were individual offerings of several hundred pounds.

The station operators generally expressed belief that Mansfielders are out to make the drive a success. They are motivated by the desire to help the war effort, not to collect the penny a pound the station men are paying for the scrap.

Through cooperation of persons having scales suitable for use, virtually all the stations were equipped today to weigh accurately the scrap items turned in. Scales of all models and descriptions were in use at the various stations.

SALTS CASH

MONTEREY, Cal.—(U.P.)—During the past two years, Daniel Garcia, 12, has sold newspapers at the Presidio of Monterey. During that time he has paid all his personal expenses, has salted away $625 in national defense bonds, and made a loan of $200 to his mother.

He sells papers before and after attending the sixth grade of a local school and also finds time to be an active Boy Scout.

She Gives Doll In Rubber Drive

Karon Louise Davis typifies the city's eagerness to co-operate in the scrap rubber collection as she hands over to Mel Lebbert, manager of the Sohio Service station at Fourth and Mulberry, the rubber doll which she's had for "a long time." The doll weighed approximately three pounds.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Swim Classes Meet—Swimming classes scheduled tomorrow at the Y. M. C. A. pool include the Empire Steel class 2 p. m.; and the Senior Hi and Cadets 3:30 p. m.

Y Board Meets—The Y. M. C. A. board of directors will hold its regular monthly dinner meeting at 5:45 p. m. Wednesday in the Colonial dining room of Happy Harry's restaurant, 50½ Park avenue west. R. M. Calene will preside at the session.

SCHOOL WOMEN FOR TVA WORK

Teachers Trained To Take Over Jobs Due To Man Shortage.

(By United Press)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—The Tennessee Valley Authority has begun expansion of its apprenticeship program, is training women for duties other than clerical work and is developing potential abilities of all present employes to meet the increasing manpower shortage.

The movement is in addition to the TVA's regular recruiting program, which in itself has been intensified.

Journeymen who do not meet the authority's standards for versatility in all phases of the trade, are being put to work at the journeyman level and are given opportunities to expand their versatility in the craft.

Through a means of training increased employment of women not only for clerical work, but also for other positions, is being made possible. Twenty girls have been enrolled in an apprentice course in engineering draftsmanship. Also application files are being prepared for the recruiting of women as accountants.

Still another step the Authority has taken is raising the upper age limit for the TVA safety service from 36 to 50. Officers are now being recruited under this policy.

About 1,400 employes of the authority have been inducted into the army. Of the 34,000 now in the TVA's employ, 25,000 are engaged in construction, electric power production and chemical manufacture.
